Scarnici's Last Sunlight Other Country, Other Ways Do the Blind See, in Dreams? Imperious Caesar vs. Joe Louis

By Arthur Brisbane

Yesterday Leonard Scarnici, 28, after two years in Sing Sing's death house, convicted of "killing a cop," was brought to New York on habeas corpus, and spent all his time looking out of the window: "I want to see all the sunshine I can," he said. He was to die in the electric chair last night, on his return to Sing Sing. No wonder he wanted to see as much sunshine as possible, with only a few hours left.

Millions of us go through life getting little sunshine, rarely, if ever, looking at the stars, our interests not unlike that of the entomologically interesting tumble bug, that spends its life in the field, rolling little balls of manure into a burrow. He doesn't even realize that there is a sun, or stars, and many men are like him, although they may "own fine country places."

You might modify the French saying to read, autre pays, autres moeurs, "different country, different manners."

Hitler orders 100,000 women to enter labor camps every year and 200,000 men to do the same. There is no charge against them. The idea is gradually to make the German people over into "rugged individuals."

In America, with dolts and imitation jobs like "raking leaves," to quote General Johnson, we are teaching Americans to lose the habit of work. Millions of Americans today would match the British "navvy," who, after two years on the dole, said:

"I eats well, I sleeps well, and I feels well. But, when they talks to me of work I comes all over of a tremble."

Mr. Ripley, who specializes in the unusual, says:

"A blind man 'sees' in his dreams."

If this statement were confirmed by psychologists and those born blind that have never seen the faintest ray of light, it might have an important bearing on the question: Is there a separate soul, dwelling in the brain of man, where the afferent nerves terminate and bring impressions from the outside world? Does a spirit completely independent of the body reside in man's skull?

If a man's thinking apparatus, never in this life having seen any image or ray of light coming over the optic nerve, can "see" in dreams, that might mean that the spirit must have "seen things" elsewhere before moving into a skull with blind eyes. It might add scientific confirmation to Wordsworth's lines:

Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting:
The soul that rises with us, our life's star,
Hath had elsewhere its setting,
And cometh from afar.

What is greatness? Whatever it may be, it is exciting while it lasts.

"Imperious Caesar, dead and turn'd to clay, might stop a hole to keep the wind away."

But when Joe Louis, the day after the "big fight," was buying a few more suits of striped clothes, the crowd that could not get into the store, broke through the plate glass windows and police had to escort Mr. Louis on his way toward Harlem. It may be, as S. S. Carvalho has often remarked, that

"One self-approving hour whole years outweighs
Of stupid starers and of loud huzzas;
And more true joy Marcellus exil'd feels
Than Caesar with a senate at his heels."

But one self-approving hour is dull compared to the excitement of having a crowd break windows merely to see you try on a new suit.

Once hundreds of independent kings ruled in Africa. One of the greatest, Cetewayo, king of the Zulus, the British imprisoned and sent his son to an island, as they once imprisoned Napoleon. They let Cetewayo keep a dozen or more wives, the British are wise compromisers.

Cetewayo, a real fighter, would not let his young warriors marry until they had "washed their spears" in the blood of an enemy. Ethiopia is the only remaining independent African kingdom, and, according to Universal Service, Mussolini has notified Ethiopia's King that he must submit to the "mandate" of Italy, or fight.

Professor Rayford W. Logan, colored professor of Atlanta, lecturing at Wellesley College, says:

ELLIOT CABOT DIVES OUT WINDOWS

J. Elliot Cabot, 37, actor scion of a distinguished Boston society family, twice plunged through windows in Cambridge today, and battled hospital attendants.

Slightly injured, he was overpowered and sent to the McLean Hospital in Waverly. He was reported suffering from a nervous breakdown.

His first dived head first from a window of a house on Hawthorne street, Cambridge.

Taken to Cambridge Hospital, he battled a doctor and two attendants and then leaped through a screened window.

The hospital staff members were not severely injured. Their identities were not made known.

Cabot is the son of Mrs. Charles Mills Cabot of 367 Beacon street, Back Bay, and Ipswich. His father, who died in 1913, was a millionaire stockbroker.

The victim of today's occurrence attended Harvard for three years and Cambridge University, England, for one year.

He has since appeared in many well-known theatrical vehicles, both amateur and professional.

SHUTTERS DOOR DOWN

Cabot, according to police, was stopping at the home of Robert B. Field on Hawthorne street, and had recently been ill.

Before jumping from the window there, a distance of 15 feet, police said he battered down a door.

He was clad in pajamas, slippers and a bathrobe when picked up and rushed to Cambridge Hospital by Field in a taxicab driven by Milton Kelley, Franklin street, Cambridge.

His only apparent injuries were lacerations and bruises on the face and head and he was being questioned for case history in the accident ward when he suddenly started for a window.

The physician and attendants tried to hold him, but were swept aside by Cabot, who is of rugged build and was an oarsman at Cambridge University.

LEAPS THROUGH SCREEN

He went through the screened window, landing on a grass embankment a few feet below.

Cambridge Officers Quinn, Gormerly and Carey were sent to the hospital with an ambulance. Cabot had been quieted when they arrived.

Dr. Leslie Leighton at Cambridge hospital, made a diagnosis of nervous breakdown and Cabot was sent to McLean hospital.

His sister, Mrs. Maurice M. Osborn, the former Frances Cabot, went to the hospital and later notified her mother at their summer estate in Ipswich.

WEDDING "POSTPONED"

At Harvard, Cabot was a member of Hasty Pudding, Fly Club, Stylus Club, Signet Society and other well-known organizations.

In May of 1928 his engagement was announced to Miss Genevieve Carpenter of Chicago, vivacious and beautiful daughter of John Alden Carpenter, the noted composer.

Three months later he sailed for Europe and announcement was made by Miss Carpenter that the wedding had been "indefinitely postponed."

DR. HARMON, 3 SAVED OFF GLOUCESTER

Gloucester, June 28—Dean Frederick Rand Rogers of Boston University, his daughter Katherine, 16; Dr. John M. Harmon, B. U. athletic director; and his son Donald, eight, barely escaped drowning today when their yacht struck the Gloucester breakwater and sank.

Dr. Harmon saved the two children in the yacht tender and Dean Rogers swam ashore through the rough sea.

Dean Rogers was bound to Gloucester from Provincetown in his 50-foot schooner yacht Narcissus.

Losing his bearings at the entrance of the harbor, the schooner ran on the rocks at Dog Bar breakwater, and stove a hole in her bow.

Almost before the children could be got off in the small boat the Narcissus slipped off the reef and went to the bottom.

Dr. Rogers summoned help from the Eastern Point lighthouse.

Latterday the wrecking lighter Phillip raised the schooner and towed her to Parkhurst's marine railway here, where the hole in her hull will be repaired.

Dr. Rogers, apparently none the worse for his icy swim, remained to supervise work on the Narcissus.

Perry Wins Golf Crown

By Associated Press

Muirfield, June 28—Alfred Perry, 30-year-old British Ryder Cup team player, won the British open golf championship today with final rounds of 67 and 72 for a record-equalling total of 283.

Perry's finishing rounds, collectively representing five strokes under par and made in the face of a wind that at times approached gale force, brought to an end the meteoric reign of Henry Cotton, winner last year.

Cotton completed the 72-hole grind over the Muirfield course with rounds of 76 and 75, for an aggregate of 293.

Perry, who previously had failed to finish in the money in the open championship, had a 12-foot putt on the final green to set a new low score for the tournament.

He tied the winning record score of 283, hung up by Gene Sarazen in 1932 and duplicated by Cotton last year at Sandwich.

IL DUCE'S DEMANDS

Protectorate Over Abyssinia, Settlement of Country by Italians, Timber and Minerals

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

London, June 28—"I must go on. My soldiers have been trained. My country believes I can achieve what I have set out to do.

"Italy must expand. She must have an outlet for her population. I would prefer to work with Emperor Haile Selassie, but if not . . ."

This was Premier Mussolini's staggering rejoinder to Captain Anthony Eden when the British envoy presented the Italian dictator with Britain's compromise proposals to settle the Italo-Abyssinian quarrel.

And the shrug which accompanied the last sentence, left uncompleted by grim-jawed Mussolini, shattered Britain's well-meant scheme to avoid an Italo-Abyssinian war in Africa. Il Duce continued.

"I cannot turn back now. I cannot accept compromises or dictation by the League of Nations. I must achieve Italy's full program in Abyssinia."

The Italian dictator, some of whose historic words to the British emissary I am able to reveal exclusively today, left no doubt

2 Quins Stand For First Time

By Associated Press

Callander, Ont., June 28—Two of the Dionne quintuplets, Yvonne and Cecile, graduated from the creeping stage and stood up for the first time today, just 13 months after their birth.

While Annette, Emilie and Marie grasped the sides of their play pen in vain attempts to imitate their sisters, nurses predicted it would not be long before they would be taking their first steps.

Yvonne and Cecile were none too steady on their legs and often joined their sisters on the floor before they finally figured out they couldn't fall if they held on to the pen railing.

Their physician, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, looking the five famous children over, just a month after their first birthday pronounced them in "great health," and said it would not be long before they would be playing outside in the yard.

"LONG COUNT" Dave Barry Jailed

Chicago, June 28 (AP)—Dave (Long Count) Barry, former prize fight referee, was sentenced to one year in the Cook County jail today by Judge Michael Feinberg for his part in a conspiracy to embezzle $50,000 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings Bank.

MAY TESTIFY AGAINST RETTICH

Herbert N. Hornstein, one of eight defendants at the $129,000 Fall River mail robbery trial, today changed his plea to guilty.

He pleaded guilty to robbery and conspiracy to rob the mails.

Hornstein, a Brown University graduate, was expected to take the stand as a government witness.

The Rettich round-up followed his arrest in Hollywood.

Before he changed his plea, $10,000 in evidence as having been found at the Rettich estate was identified by two employes of the Federal Reserve Bank as part of the mail shipment.

MYSTERY WOMAN, 3 HUNTED IN DICKINSON DEATH

HUGHES NEPHEW IS TRACED TO SALOON

Detroit, June 28—In the mesh of Detroit's most bizarre slaying, two women were entangled today—one a woman of mystery and one a woman who never saw the victim of the murder.

With a bullet in his head and another in his side, Howard Carter Dickinson, New York attorney and nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of United States Supreme Court, was found dead yesterday in River Rough Park.

Today all of Detroit's crack detectives were seeking the mystery woman who, several hours after the slaying, walked into the Book-Cadillac Hotel, left the victim's brief case with the check girl—and calmly departed.

She is the "unknown woman."

Mrs. Elizabeth Carmichael Witherspoon, slender and pretty brunette actress, is the woman who finds herself central figure in the slaying of a man she never saw.

Detectives were also seeking Lee Ferris, an acquaintance of Dickinson, who has been missing since noon yesterday, and had sent out an alarm for a car bearing Michigan license plates, said to have speeded East.

HUNT FOR FRIEND

Ferris had told a friend he was "going out with a lawyer from the Book-Cadillac, a guy with plenty of money," according to the detectives.

They were also checking on a story by Carl C. Oglesbee, proprietor of a Dearborn beer garden, and Richard Watkins, a bartender, that Dickinson, with two men, was drinking in the saloon five hours before he was found slain.

Dickinson, according to their story, ordered a "half shot of the best whiskey in the house."

One of the other men ordered a beer. The third man ordered nothing, but was said to have chided Dickinson, saying:

"You've had too much."

It was in connection with a suit contemplated by Mrs. Witherspoon against the estate of William H. Yawkey, multi-millionaire foster-father of Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox, that Attorney Dickinson came to Detroit.

SHOCKED BY DEATH

Mrs. Witherspoon claims she is the natural daughter of the late multi-millionaire and his late wife, the former Mrs. Margaret Draper of Detroit. She claims she was born four years before the marriage in 1910.

"I'm horrified," Mrs. Witherspoon said today of the slaying. "This is terrible."

"I never saw Mr. Dickinson, but I knew he was an attorney in my case.

"My foster brother, Arthur Carmichael, an attorney in the Ford building, telephoned me and told me Mr. Dickinson's body had been found.

"My brother knew him, of course, because there had been conferences.

"Isn't it amazing that of all the men in Detroit who might have been shot, it should be this attorney?

"I can't talk about the case. My brother is handling all that. I have been very ill for three months and only got out of bed two days ago.

HUNT FOR DRUG

"This is terrible. We did not want any publicity on the contemplated suit. I am shaking so, I can't seem to pull myself together.

"I don't know anything about Mr. Dickinson. I didn't even know he was in town this time, for my brother had not been discussing developments of the case with me since I have been ill."

As she talked, tears ran down her thin face.

She is known to theater audiences as Lynn Morrow, and is a close friend of Ann Harding, with whom she used to play in stock here.

Today the detectives were awaiting chemists' reports as to whether the slain attorney had been drugged before being shot.

Meanwhile a check is being made with Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., of New York, Dickinson's law partner, to determine if any papers are missing from the brief case left at the hotel.

None of the investigators in authority would be quoted on the theory that replaced first belief that Dickinson had been done to death by robbers who looted his body of a large sum of money.

Nevertheless, it was said, that the probe now aims at determining the possibility that a woman lured the attorney to some place where he was drugged, then taken for a death ride.

What connection—if any at all—this had with the business that brought Dickinson here from New York, could not be learned.

Correspondence in the dead man's effects disclosed that he was interviewing witnesses in connection with the $40,000,000 claim against the estate.

Principal beneficiary to the estate is Tom Yawkey, who was an adopted son, as well as a nephew.

So far as Tom Yawkey himself is concerned, when he was notified at Philadelphia, he was shocked and surprised. He said:

"This is all news to me. I know nothing of the suit."

Yawkey said that he recalled vaguely that his parents knew a woman named Elizabeth Carmichael. He added that he knew of no claimed relationship and said he had not seen the woman for years.

The younger Hughes, Dickinson's partner, declined to comment on the Witherspoon case.

BROTHER IS SILENT

Nor would Arthur G. Carmichael, brother of the woman as well as her attorney, talk about the suit. He did, however, verify the contention of Mrs. Witherspoon as indicated by Dickinson's papers.

The other heir to the Yawkey fortune is Mrs. Marry S. Toy, wife of the attorney-general here and a niece of the late William Yawkey.

The deceased Yawkey made his millions in the lumber business and had been part owner of the Detroit Tigers baseball team.

The late multi-millionaire Yawkey lived here from 1904 to 1908 where he met Mrs. Margaret Draper—now also deceased—whom he later married.

Mrs. Witherspoon, it is said, claims she is Mrs. Draper and William Yawkey gave the names of Raymond and Sadie Mills at the time of her birth.

Later "Baby Mills" was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Carmichael, according to the claims of the attractive young actress.

The Carmichaels, upon the adoption, received large sums of money from the Yawkeys, it was further asserted.

Mrs. Witherspoon contends that she did not learn of her true parents until after the death of the foster parents.

DOCTOR'S STORY

Dickinson on frequent visits to Detroit during the last six months has interviewed scores of witnesses.

Among them was Dr. William D. Martin, who attended Mrs. Yawkey here before her marriage.

"I do not believe it probable that Mrs. Draper, later Mrs. Yawkey, gave birth to a child in July, 1906," Dr. Martin said today. "I have attended both and Mr. Yawkey professionally Mrs. Draper and Mr. Yawkey professionally for at least two years previous to this time."

"I acted as Yawkey's physician and also attended Mrs. Draper," Dr. Martin said. "In 1905 I believe, I advised Mrs. Yawkey of the necessity of an operation.

"This operation was performed by the late Dr. Walter B. Manton some months before the baby is alleged to have been born in July, 1906. My records also show that on these dates the child was born Mrs. Draper visited me in my office.

"I believed Mrs. Draper and Yawkey were married in 1911 or thereabouts. A few years afterwards they moved to New York. Yawkey returned to Detroit frequently and always called at my office.

"Upon Yawkey's death his share in the Detroit baseball club was inherited by Mrs. Yawkey. She died a few years ago."

Dr. Martin said early this year Attorney General Toy and a man named "DeFoe" representing the Yawkey estate called at his office.

"Mr. Toy told me they desired information about Mr. and Mrs. Yawkey. I allowed them to examine my records. A few weeks later Mr. Dickinson and Mr. Hughes, also representing Mr. Yawkey, paid me a visit.

I gave them all the information available. Both were very high grade gentlemen. They visited me several times on the same mission. Mr. Dickinson visited me for the last time about two months ago."

Wife Convinced Of Robbery Motive

By International News Service

North Tarrytown, N. Y., June 28—Grief stricken, Mrs. Howard C. Dickinson, wife of the distinguished nephew of Charles Evans Hughes, today insisted at her home here that her husband had been murdered solely because of large sums of money he carried habitually.

Sweeping aside any suggestion that his connection as an attorney with the estate of William H. Yawkey had anything to do with the slaying, Mrs. Dickinson pictured her husband as a "quiet, gentle and home-loving man" who never at any time had aroused the enmity of sinister agencies.

that he believed fate was guiding him. He declared:

"Let history judge."

And then he told Eden, who returned disconsolate to London to make a full report to the already-depressed British cabinet:

"I am sorry that Britain and America are against me. But I must go on.

"In six months' time, both Britain and America will see that I am right."

Mussolini, outlining the failure of the Abyssinians to carry out their obligation to Italy, declared that Italy's demands were:

1—A protectorate over Abyssinia, similar to that of the British in Egypt and the French in Morocco, with Emperor Haile Selassie retaining international political sovereignty.

2—Settlement and development of Abyssinia by Italian emigrants.

3—Abyssinia to supply timber of which Italy badly needs, as well as minerals, though timber is Mussolini's primary concern.

4—Italy to build a railroad through Abyssinia, connecting its present colonial ports of Massowa and Magadoxo, which are now separated by French and British Somalilands.

5—Italy to develop its colonial ports of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, as part of the internal development of Abyssinia.

Mussolini assured Eden that British and French rights would be safeguarded in Abyssinia. There would be no rivalry between Italy and her former allies, he said.

In a ringing challenge to the League of Nations, the Italian premier declared:

"If the League is prepared to arrange for an adequate flow of Italian settlers to Abyssinia, with a full guarantee that these settlers can work in peaceful development of the land and have the right of full production, then I am prepared to work with the League."

In stinging words, Mussolini added:

"I am prepared to see League of Nations' troops working side by side in conjunction with Italian soldiers in Abyssinia. But I am not prepared to see League of Nations' diplomats dictating to Italians."

Italian Public Now in Favor of War

By Associated Press

Rome June 28—Public opinion in Italy, swerving sharply during the last five months, appeared today to be strongly in favor of a war with Ethiopia.

Captain Anthony Eden's recent visit seemingly did nothing to interfere with the surge of sentiment for armed conflict in support of Premier Mussolini's demand for "complete solution" of the East African dispute.

Some observers pointed out that a considerable section of the Italian populace was convinced Captain Eden had come to attempt to induce Il Duce to relinquish his plans in Ethiopia in exchange for an unimportant territorial concession.

Overwhelming public support of Italy's African adventure had been considered lacking when the first communique for East African mobilization was published.

Many factors, material and psychological, account for the transformation. One is the economic betterment produced by the war preparations. Unemployment has been sharply reduced and industrial activity has risen considerably during 1935.

Another is widespread belief about great wealth in Ethiopia. Rumors are rife of the finding of gold along Ethiopian streams. Colonial papers speak of gold, platinum, cotton and coffee.

A third is the newspaper campaign which has referred to the alleged horrible conditions of slavery and debasement in Ethiopa and of Italy's colonizing mission.

A fourth is the general realization that Italy needs an outlet for her population. The Italians have been told Ethiopia is the only place left where white men may colonize.

Most Italians believe that the Ethiopians who form a minority of the population of the country have oppressed the other races until the latter are eager to revolt and would enter a war on the side of the Italians.

Carnera by Joe Louis will be interpreted as an additional insult to the Italian flag, which will permit Mussolini to assert again the necessity for Italy to annihilate Abyssinia."

It might surprise Professor Logan to know how little Mussolini thinks about Joe Louis. It is possible that the Italian dictator has not heard of the event that means so much to 123,000,000 highly civilized Americans.

According to Karl Von Wiegand, it is "freely predicted that if Geneva (meaning the League of Nations) lets Italy do to Abyssinia what Japan did to China, it will mean an end of the League of Nations."

There is no real league of nations, only an arrangement by which England and France seek to rule the rest of the world, if other nations will kindly permit it. Mussolini will NOT permit it.

Japan is doing what she pleases in China because the League of Nations isn't real, and France and England have had all the fighting they want, for the present.

Mussolini will do as he pleases in Abyssinia. England will talk, not act.

And, with all sympathy for Abyssinia, and the rights of the emperor who is afraid of might be dethroned, if I submitted to Italian domination," it must be said that the world's civilization would probably be improved if the Italians moved in.

Tens of centuries removed from his supposed ancestors, King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, the King of Abyssinia still considers a scalp from the head of a lion the best headgear for his warriors, and the fate of a great majority of his subjects is misery. Mussolini might at least give them regular work at living wages.

In any case, it is not for us to preach to Mussolini. When Mavroyeni Bey, Turkish ambassador at Washington, heard Americans criticizing Turks for exterminating Armenians, he asked, blandly:

"Where are your Indians? I see no Indians."

Eva Coo's Dying Words

KILLER HURLS "INNOCENT!" AS CHALLENGE AS SHE DIES IN THE CHAIR

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Ossining, N. Y., June 28—Eva Coo's seared body lay unclaimed in the morgue of Sing Sing prison today—an unclaimed receipt for her debt to society.

At 11:05 last night she paid with her life in the electric chair for the brutal insurance murder of Harry (Gimpy) Wright, the crippled handy-man who worked for his keep at her Otsego County roadhouse.

The buxom Diamond Lil met her death stoically, though she protested her innocence to the end.

She walked to the chair unassisted, but she swore she was not guilty.

Her last words were to her two matrons, who stood sobbing in front of her as the death mask was slipped over her head. They were:

"Goodbye, darlings."

Two minutes after Eva's lifeless body had been wheeled out of the death chamber, Leonard Scarnici, 29-year-old gangster, who killed a Rensselaer County policeman, swaggered to the chair.

Before the deadly current was passed through his body he created a sensation by confessing to a New England crime for which another man—an innocent man, he said—is in prison.

EVA HOPED TO END

Eva hoped to the bitter end for a commutation from Governor Lehman. She refused food throughout the day and even spurned a sumptuous final supper, traditional in the death-house on the eve of an execution.

She would talk of nothing but her innocence and her chance for salvation from the Governor.

But at 10:30 p. m. a final telephone call from Albany to Warden Lewis E. Lawes sealed her doom, once and for all.

Lawes personally conveyed the news to Eva.

She blanched, but remained calm.

Lawes remained in her cell with her to comfort her as a barber hurried in and clipped the back of her blonde head for the electrode.

She asked him not to cut the front of her hair and looking in a mirror, thanked him for clipping as little as possible.

The condemned woman kept up a flood of conversation as the minutes ticked away. She said she had been double-crossed and muicted by her friends but forgave them.

"I forgive everybody who did me wrong and I hope God will be good to me," she said.

At a minute before 11 the cell door was opened and she was beckoned to start "the last mile." the walk to the death chamber. She turned to Lawes for a final word:

"I am going to die in three minutes," she said, "and I swear before God I'm innocent and never saw that mallet. Goodbye."

"Goodbye, kid," says Scarnici.

As the three guards and two matrons escorted her past Scarnici's cell she said goodbye to the Rev. John F. McCafferty and the gangster.

"Goodbye, kid," replied Scarnici. "Keep your chin up."

The gunman added, to a guard:

"Anybody who'd see anyone go like that would have to have some moxie, or he'd be pretty cheap."

Down a long passageway Eva walked, unhurriedly, with her sombre escort.

At 11:02 they came to a huge paneled door at the end of the passageway.

The door swung open on a big, brightly lighted, square chamber.

Eva blinked as she stepped into the room.

She cast a bewildered look at the 22 newspaperman occupying six rows of benches, at the officials lining the wall, at the gaunt little man who was crouched over a bucket of water, dipping a helmet into it.

Then her eyes found the strange, oaken chair.

She walked directly to it and sat down.

She gripped its arms.

Her mouth was puckered.

Her gray eyes were fixed straight ahead.

Guards quickly began adjusting the black straps about her body.

The two matrons, Mrs. Mae Creighton, a statuesque blonde, and Mrs. Carrie Stevens, colored, stood two feet in front of her to protect her from the possible pictures by smuggled cameras.

The Rev. Anthony Peterson was softly praying:

"The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want ——."

The gaunt little man—Executioner Robert Elliott—reached into the bucket for the electrodes. He fixed one to the calf of her right leg where the stocking had been rolled down.

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I shall fear no evil . . ."

Elliott began to adjust the death mask. Eva spoke faintly:

"Goodbye Darlings, good——."

The mask shut off the rest.

". . . And I shall dwell in the House of the Lord forever . . ."

A guard gave the strap across Eva's bosom a final yank. She uttered a muffled cry.

The minister turned his back as Elliott stepped briskly into a niche back of the chair, placed his hand on the switch. At a nod from Warden Lawes, he pressed the switch.

It was exactly 11:05.

Eva's body lurched against the straps, stiffened.

Her fingers shot out. The chair creaked and groaned as though it would burst.

Then all was silence, except for the sobbing of the two matrons, for two interminable minutes.

Then the 2000-volt current was cut. The bosom of Eva's blue print dress was opened. Three physicians applied stethoscopes and Dr. Charles C. Sweet said:

"I declare this woman dead."

Three husky guards lifted the body to a wheeled table and rolled it out of the room at 11:07.

SCARNICI GRINS

Two minutes later Scarnici, grinning, violently chewing gum and smoking a cigarette, swaggered in. He plunked down in the chair and, with a nod of permission from Lawes, proclaimed in a loud voice:

"All I want to say is to give this message to the people up in Albany who double-crossed me—"

"I'm still a better man than they are. That's all. Thanks Warden. Okay, let's go. Okay Bob."

He was dead at 11:13.

After the execution Lawes revealed Scarnici had called for the prison clerk, a notary public, 30 minutes before his execution and written the following confession:

"To whom it may concern: I, Leonard Scarnici, being of sound mind and not looking for anything, testify that Arthur Flenti, now in Weathersfield State Penitentiary (Connecticut) is innocent of the Lennow shirt factory hold-up. I took part in the crime and know that Flenti was not there. I do not want to see an innocent man suffer."

Lawes said he would send the confession to Connecticut authorities at once. Scarnici twice before cheated death by "squealing" on others. He failed to get a stay yesterday.

Eva was described by Lawes as "one of the gamest persons I ever saw go.

"She was much less perturbed than her three matrons and I," he said.

He expressed bitterness at the way certain persons he did not name "plucked her clean" and sold her out.

David Slade, her appeal lawyer, was equally bitter. He remained with her from the afternoon until 10 p. m., and when he left her cell his eyes were red. He said:

"This is the greatest miscarriage of justice I have ever known in a criminal court. I am convinced she was innocent."

Wright was murdered June 14, last year. The State proved Eva, and her friends, Mrs. Martha Cliff, bludgeoned him and ran an automobile back and forth over his body in order to collect some $12,000 in insurance Eva had taken out on his life. Mrs. Cliff turned state's evidence and escaped with a 20-year sentence.

U.S. BOYS Lead in SCIENCE

GIRLS SECOND AS THINKERS

By Associated Press

Minneapolis, June 28—Children of the United States, Miss Jean L. Marquis told the American Association for the Advancement of Science today, are superior to children of other countries in scientific thinking.

And boys have it all over the girls in explaining natural phenomena, Miss Marquis disclosed.

In her work at the University of Minnesota Institute of Child Welfare, Miss Marquis said, she found most results of casual reasoning in children are more dependent upon experience and training than upon development factors.

She ascribed as the reason for this better scientific thinking among American children, the "scientific tradition of this country having permeated though society."

Some 700 children eight to 16 years old were questioned to gauge their development of reasoning.

They were asked such questions as, "What makes the wind blow," "What causes thunder," "Why does the candle go out when a jar is placed over the flame."

Most American children, she reported, gave material or naturalistic causes as the answers.

Conversely, investigators found children of other countries gave many "pre-logical" replies, or explanations in which some spirit or force was created in the child's mind to explain what happened.

Only 13 per cent of the American children tested, Miss Marquis reported, even at eight years old, gave that type of answer.

Body Recovered

After a search that began last night, the body of Charles Grey, 20, of 28 Ellsworth street, Medford, was found today in Wright's Pond, Medford.

YOUTH Told of Red MENACE

JUNIOR C. OF C. HEAR OWEN

By Universal Service

Columbus, O., June 28—A ringing appeal to all loyal American citizens to join in combatting the menacing spread of Communism and its undermining attacks on fundamental American institutions was made before the national convention here of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

LeRoy D. Owen, national coordinator of the organization's "American program," told the 2000 delegates that the ranks of Communism are being swelled from the 7,500,000 aliens in the United States, 3,500,000 of whom are in America illegally.

Bares Activities

Calling upon his organization and all other civic and welfare groups to challenge the Communists and "those un-Americans who would overthrow our Constitution," Owen told of an investigation into Red activities he recently completed.

He said he found these things:

"The United States has been divided into 26 districts by the Communist party, with 187 sub-districts in over 500 cities.

"There are in the United States 600 national Communist organizations which have to do with every phase of our business, social and religious life.

"The Communists maintain over 400 regular newspapers, magazines and news bulletins.

"There are more than 300 schools in the United States maintained by the Communists, teaching revolutionary strike tactics, hatred of our government and institutions."

This afternoon, he and his mother, Mrs. Douglas M. Nellson, are to be the guests of the town of Braintree, birthplace of his maternal great-grandfather, Stephen Thayer.

Escorted by the town fathers, they will make a pilgrimage to the ancient Thayer homestead.

They will spend the night in the home of Miss Marion Arnold of 38 Wilmarth road, Braintree, cousin of Jimmy.

Arriving in Boston tomorrow, they expect to leave for New York and a visit with America's original "upside-down stomach" girl, smiling Alyce Jane McHenry of Omaha.

It has been tentatively planned, Mrs. Nelson said, for them to return to California by plane.

Jimmy, who can't quite make up his mind as to whether he wishes to become a surgeon or an aviator, is thrilled at the prospect.

Scouts Hunt Missing Girl

By Associated Press

Greenville, N. Y., June 28—Search for nine-year-old Helen Glenn, who disappeared Wednesday night, turned today to a swampy, wooded sector a mile south of the village, where a farmer said he had heard screams of terror a few hours after the girl was reported missing.

The farmer, Paul Austin, told State troopers he heard the screams two or three times.

The girl, daughter of the Reverend Ernest Glenn, left home about 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night to walk to the Greenville grammar school, a few blocks away. She was last seen standing on a street corner two blocks from the house.

"We only hope she hasn't been kidnaped and that she is merely lost," her father said.

John Welch, Greene county district attorney and friend of the Glenn family, and 50 Boy Scouts joined the search by state troopers

1935 Words That Made News in First Half of Year HEADLINERS

Babe Ruth

By Associated Press

Chicago, June 28—The big show of 1935 is half over.

The performances may not have pleased everyone. But its rapid-fire action kept the audience awake.

The longest monologue was Huey P. Long's. It lasted 15 hours by the Senate clock.

Father Coughlin and General Johnson figured in the feature dialogue—the "Chocolate Soldier-Political Padre" debate.

There were many stirring scenes replete with memorable lines.

President Roosevelt observed that th Supreme Court decision invalidating the NRA marked a return to the "horse and buggy" economic era.

These lines, too, earned wide attention:

JUSTICE TRENCHARD: "The sentence of the court is that you, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, suffer death."

HERBERT HOOVER: "The theories of this administration do not work."

SECRETARY ICKES: "The emperor of Louisiana is suffering hallitosis of the intellect."

BABE RUTH: "Boys, I'm through."

JUSTICE McREYNOLDS (re gold ruling): "The Constitution is gone."

VOLNEY DAVIS: "I'm guilty. It's no use trying to beat these 'G' guys."

SILAS STRAWN: "Is this the New Deal or the new death?"

GEORGE BUCHANAN (in House of Commons): "The prime minister would double-cross his own aunt."

HUEY LONG: "Ickes can go siap dam to hell."

ADOLPH HITLER (reviewing the army): "Germany saw herself forced to take measures for her own protection."

ALABAMA FITTS: "I can make a go of it in this league."

ANDREW MELLON: "I would rather spend the rest of my days in jail than submit to such tyranny."

GRASS ROOTERS: "Defend the Constitution."

SENATOR ROBINSON: "Month after month the senator from Louisiana has disgusted the Senate."

But consider the contribution of Congresson MAURY MAVERICK of Texas. A citizen had written him a 2000 word complaint concerning his actions and the activities of the New Deal.

His dear sirred reply was: "P-T-T!"

SUSPECT IN MAIL ROBBERY IDENTIFIED BY WOMAN, 90

A little old lady in black—90 years of age—took the witness stand in federal court today in an effort to help Uncle Sam convict six alleged mail robbers.

White-haired, diminutive, spry and decisive, Mrs. Mary J. Lord of Adams street, Fall River, identified Herbert N. Hornstein, one of the defendants in the $129,000 Fall River mail robbery trial.

Mrs. Lord, if not the oldest, was one of the oldest witnesses ever to testify in a criminal case here.

Hornstein, she told Judge Hugh D. McLellan and jury—her voice strong and calm—was the man who rented a garage from her last November.

"THAT'S THE MAN"

He kept his car there until the day of the holdup when it was driven away never to return.

Hornstein was ordered to walk in front of her where she sat in a chair provided at the witness stand.

"Yes sir," she said with assurance. "That is the man."

She was next cross-examined.

Attempts to prove that $10,200 found on the estate of Carl Rettich is part of the robbery loot featured other government evidence at trial of Rettich and six others as principals, and of two accused as accessories.

Walter F. O'Neil, in charge of the note issue department of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, was a chief witness.

He testified that the package of new $10 bills included in the money found at Rettich's Warwick, R. I., estate had been sent by him on January 15 to the federal reserve department that distributes currency to New England banks.

The robbery was January 23, and the loot was en route from the Federal Reserve to a Fall River trust company.

Other testimony was that Emil Rettich, 74-year-old father of the alleged gang leader, has been under guard "against reprisal."

This was given by Chief Postoffice Inspector John J. Breslin.

OUT AS WITNESS

Rettich, senior, who has been here since the start of trial, will not be called as a government witness because he is not needed and "because of sentimental reasons," according to United States Attorney Francis J. W. Ford.

Testimony that he had been guarded against reprisal came during a long cross-examination of Breslin, in the course of which defense attorneys made much of the fact that federal men and police, with their wives, visited the Rettich estate on the Sunday following the April raid there.

William R. Scharton, of the defense, said he would show the group examined everything and was after souvenirs, even trying to take doorknobs off the house.

This was denied by Breslin, who said the visit was semi-official and made at invitation of Emil Rettich.

Peaches' First Role in Movies

May Rate A Closeup

By HARRISON CARROLL
Copyright, 1935, International News Service

Hollywood, June 28—When Peaches Browning denied she came to California with movie ambitions, Hollywood didn't take her too seriously.

Now it looks as if Hollywood was right.

The girl, who crashed the headlines continuously a few years back, is going to face the camera, in a Paramount picture today.

She plays only a bit in Bing Crosby's new film, "Two for Tonight," but her friends out here intimate she will lend a willing ear to any picture offers.

Peaches, or Mrs. Bernard Hynes in private life, goes into her present assignment without the formality of a screen test.

She appears in a night club scene, and studio officials said she might, or might not, rate a close-up.

In addition to her movie debut, Peaches is excited about the loss of a $1200 brooch the other night in a Hollywood late spot.

TAX HEAD HITS SPENDING BILLS

Passage of spending bills by the legislature in the face of a $23,000,000 deficit today drew a rebuke from Reginald W. Bird, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Associations.

Stating that Massachusetts may be "reduced to a playground for citizens of other states," Bird cited the flight of industry and the loss of thousands of homes in a statement against the Legislature.

He added:

"With a deficit of $23,000,000 staring them in the face, the Legislature still goes gayly along passing bills which still further increase the load on the taxpayers.

"Are they so blind that they cannot realize that industry after industry is moving out of the state into other states where the taxation is much more favorable, leaving a trail behind them of unemployed.

"Certainly the people as a whole, through the medium of the organization which I represent, have a right to appeal to this Legislature for mercy."

SPEED, MONEY "Blighting" U. S.

Child educators in Swampscott today heard Professor Laura Zirbes of Ohio State University charge that America's exaltation of work, money and speed was "sending more people to sanatoriums yearly than to colleges."

She declared also that the country was being "victimized" by commercial recreation and that the wise use of leisure should be taught in the lower grades.

Gardener, 61, Kills Woman, 42, in Lovers' Quarrel

By Associated Press

Hollywood, June 28—Daniel W. Nield, 61-year-old gardener, was booked on suspicion of murder early today in the slaying of his sweetheart, Miss Frances Conklin, 42, a Hollywood stenographer.

Climaxing an investigation that began last night with discovery of the woman's bullet-torn body in a secluded spot near the Griffith Park bridle path, detectives said the elderly gardener had confessed the slaying.

His story, the detectives said, was of a picnic that ended in a lovers' quarrel when Nield accused Miss Conklin of "not loving" him.

The woman's 84-year-old mother, Mrs. Maria Conklin, accompanied them to the park. Leaving the mother alone, the two sauntered off together.

The quarrel and the shooting followed, detectives said.

"It is like a nightmare," Nield was quoted as saying.

"I shot her once, twice, I don't know how many times.

"Then I ran away."

Miss Conklin had been shot twice in the chest and once in the abdomen.

The aged mother, abandoned in the park and taken to her home by a stroller, did not know of her daughter's death until today.

Officers said that after the shooting Nield went to the home of a brother who persuaded him to surrender.

GOLD SUIT BAN BILL IN HOUSE

By Associated Press

Washington, June 28—An administration bill to deny holders of government securities the right to claim damages in court actions as a result of dollar devaluation was introduced today by Chairman Steagall of the House banking committee.

The legislation was requested yesterday by President Roosevelt in a special message to Congress.

Steagall said the measure would be taken up by the banking committee on Monday and reported to the House "after possibly a couple of days' hearings."

Four See Girl's Death Leap

Lowell, June 28—Barely eluding two motoring couples, an unidentified girl dived to her death from Pawtucket bridge into the Merrimack River today.

Hours later, police were still dragging the river waters below Pawtucket Falls, but had found no trace of the body.

Edward F. Murphy of Caldwell street, Miss Arlene Duffy of South street, Henry F. Mulholland of Ludlam street and Miss Marion Chisholm of West street were crossing the bridge in a car.

The lights of the automobile picked out the form of the girl standing on the bridge parapet, but as Mulholland, who was driving, halted the machine, the girl jumped for the stream only a few yards below the falls.

Mulholland and his party raced for Lowell police headquarters and reported the suicide.

COURT FORCES STORE ON HER

Salem, June 28—Whether she wants it or not, Mrs. Lucy Snow Phinney, 59-year-old housekeeper, has a $2000 grocery store in Newburyport.

She spurned the store, left her in the will of her late employer, Arthur Russell, who died May 2.

Russell's six children also refused to take the store and petitioned Judge O'Brien in probate court to let a jury decide the issue.

Today Judge O'Brien ruled that the original will must stand and that the store belongs to Mrs. Phinney.

All of which brings to a close, for the time at least, one of the strangest estate battles on record.

Russell's will left the store to his housekeeper, with the provision that when she died it should be sold and the proceeds divided among his six children.

Mrs. Phinney refused the bequest and instituted suit for services as housekeeper.

The children also refused the store and contended their father was intoxicated when he made his will on February 9.

Omaha, June 28—This minnow can take a whale of a lot of punishment. Bradford Cummings, 11, found it in the dishwater, covered with soap. He recalled the dishwater came from the icebox drain and decided the fish had gotten into the cooler in a cake of ice.

Bradford put the minnow into the gold fish bowl and a cannibal gold fish chewed off its navigating fin, but it's still as game as a grandpa catfish, he said.

10,000 YD MEN IN NEW HAVEN

By Associated Press

New Haven, June 28—"The Yanks are coming" has been the slogan in New Haven for weeks, and today they are here—10,000 strong—veterans of the famed Yankee Division gathered from 46 of the 48 states for their annual three-day convention and reunion.

Those former soldiers, with the war-time 26th Division of the A. E. F., began to converge on the Elm City as early as yesterday morning, and last night they were alighting from every train and bus.

All highways leading into New Haven were crowded with cars bearing the well-known Y. D. emblem.

The convention's first business session will be tonight, but the evening's big event is the "air raid" to be staged on New Haven by three planes of the 118th Observation Squadron, C. N. G., and the spirited land "defense" by coast artillerymen from East Greenwich, R. I., and Fort Totten, N. Y.

JURY REFUSES TO INDICT BOYS

By Universal Service

New York, June 28—Rehabilitation was recommended by a grand jury for the three "baby bandits" arrested for killing a man with a revolver they stole from a Jamaica, Long Island, police station.

The jury, in refusing to return an indictment for first degree murder, urged that the children's court take over custody of the youths—Frank Damato, 13, his brother, Julius, 10, and their pal, Libson Lawrence, 13, son of a Negro clergyman.

District Attorney Sullivan, in commenting on the jury action said:

"The best interests of social justice will be served if these lads are turned over to child welfare agencies and steps are taken to place them in an institution, where they may be reared as proper citizens."

The three youngsters, accustomed to hanging around the police station at bootblacks, stole a revolver June 13 from a holster left by an officer in the station squad room.

Accosting William Walsh, an unemployed painter, they sought to rob him when they found him in a stupor in a vacant lot. One of the boys allegedly shot him when he shooed them away.

YOUNG G. O. P. HIT LEFT WING

Delegates to the New England Young Republican conference in New London, Ct., tomorrow are prepared to reject "any left-wing New York" proposals and will stand pat on applying "old-fashioned common sense" to the problems confronting the gathering, it was indicated today.

Reports have reached the delegates that several of the New York "left wing" element will attempt to launch their national drive among the young voters of the G. O. P. at this conference.

Among policies that will be adhered to, it is said, will be the "pay-as-you-go" system, which is opposed to the floating of bond issues to meet government expenses.

It is expected the permanent organization of the New England Conference of Young Republicans will be: Chairman, Wallace Stearns, Massachusetts; vice-chairman, Miss Priscilla Boynton of New Hampshire and Charles P. Nelson, Maine; secretary, Robert L. Gilbert, Connecticut; assistant secretary, John M. Dring, Rhode Island.

Distracts Life-Guards

Life-guards at Hermosa Beach, Calif., couldn't seem to keep their minds on their jobs when comely Ann Christie came tripping along the sands in this fish-net and flesh-colored satin bathing suit. But when official censors ordered Ann away, to the rescue came Police Chief Eddie Messinger. "It's modest," he said, "and ornamental! Let her stay." Hitler Peace Time Draft To Exempt Jewish Girls

By International News Service

Berlin, June 28—With potatoes to be dug and pigs to be fed, Chancellor Hitler today looked toward every able-bodied Aryan woman in Germany to co-operate willingly in a new special law being drafted for compulsory labor service in the farms and fields of the Reich.

Voluntary labor service for women is already in effect, but the new regulations, which are not expected to be operating until late next year, will compel fraus and frauleins of all ages to "get acquainted with the country" regardless of whether their beauty and their figures suffer.

Exempted will be Jewish girls and women, except in wartime, when, just as in the case of military conscription for men, non-Aryans also will be drafted for special labor duties.

Under present regulations, put into effect some time ago, females between the ages of 18 and 25 with exception of non-Aryans, are compelled to spend a full year living and working on farms unless they can show cause for exemption—either because they are indispensable in their regular jobs or the support of their families.

The difference under the new labor law will be that the girls will be assigned to regimented camps, the same as the present volunteer corps, instead of living with individual families.

As might be expected, the government's plans have brought a variety of reactions.

Many girls, particularly those who have led lonely city lives or have found difficulty in keeping jobs, look forward to the service as an adventure.

But those of better-class families view it as a tragedy, particularly so do many parents, fearing unaccustomed farm service and life in regimented camps will have a deleterious physical or psychological effect.

There is a sub rosa argument being put forward to the effect frail feminine beauty cannot survive long period of manual labor and roughing it without permanent effects, such as loss of figure and beauty through spreading of hips, over-development of arm and leg muscles and tragic results to carefully-tended hands and fingernails.

Girls long used to the comforts and luxuries of home are almost panicky, while quite the opposite are those yearning to be footloose and away from stuffy homes.

TEXTILE STRIKE SPREAD FEARED

Lowell, June 28—Fear that the textile strike in the Uxbridge worsted mill branch here might spread to other worsted mills was expressed today by manufacturers.

Officials of the United Textile Workers threatened to call out all worsted workers if the mills here did not refuse to accept the unfilled orders of the Uxbridge plant to help them keep their contracts.

In Woonsocket, R. I., the storm center of the Uxbridge mill strike, agreement between mill operators and strikers seemed as far from being reached as ever.

Managers of three branch mills of the Uxbridge company merely reiterated their statement that until the strikers were ready to come back to work, the mills would remain closed.

Governor Green of Rhode Island and Mayor Toupin of Woonsocket issued a conference call for today in an attempt to reach an understanding.

'GAG' PLANNED TO SPEED 'SOCK THRIFTY' TAX

By Associated Press

Washington, June 28—"Gag" rule procedure to kill off unwanted amendments to President Roosevelt's soak-the-thrifty program was considered today by House leaders.

They spoke of such drastic action to block moves to write in what some Republicans called "budget-balancing" taxes and to repeal many existing levies.

Even a tariff fight appeared in prospect if the new legislation were opened for amendment.

Although the administration's proposed bill was still in nebulous form, House leaders were determined to try and limit it only to taxes on inheritances, gifts, corporate incomes and individual incomes of more than $1,000,000.

They will seek an agreement to this end among Democrats on the House ways and means committee.

Later the "gag" rule may be proposed if they believe it necessary to prevent changes in the House.

REPUBLICANS FOR MORE TAX

Chairman Doughton (D), North Carolina, and Democratic members of the ways and means committee conferred for three hours with Secretary Morgenthau and other Treasury officials, but no conclusions were reached on the new rates.

The only definite decision made, Doughton said, was that the President's tax suggestions "require most careful and orderly procedure" in drafting a bill. It was agreed public hearings on the measure could not begin before July 8.

Representative Snell, New York, Republican leader, was one of those who yesterday demanded a "real tax bill"—one "that will balance the budget."

Another was Representative Reed (R), New York, who said the program as outlined by Senator Harrison (D), Mississippi, Senate finance committee chairman, would not raise enough revenue "to make a drop in the bucket."

MAY BAR "GAS" TAX

The levies proposed by Harrison would place a tax of 60 to 80 per cent on incomes above $1,000,000; 4 to 75 per cent on inheritances above $300,000, and 10 to 17½ per cent on corporation incomes.

He estimated that these, plus gift taxes at undisclosed rates, would yield about $340,000,000 annually.

Some House liberals, including Representative Rankin (D), Mississippi, said the proposed rates were not "stiff enough" to bring a "wider distribution of wealth" as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt.

Other members served notice they would seek repeal of the federal gasoline tax and levies on furs, toilet articles, electricity and the like.

It is to head off these moves that ways and means Democrats want an agreement to limit the bill to the four taxes recommended by the President.

Doughton said he did not know whether this could be done.

"But we can't," he said, "write a new tax law. We haven't the time."

CALLS IT "INSINCERE"

Indications now are that the House will not act finally on the legislation until late in August.

Both branches of Congress yesterday completed action and sent to the White House the measure extending $500,000,000 worth of "nuisance" taxes for two years. Most of them would have expired Sunday night.

Senator Hastings (R), Delaware, charged in that chamber that Mr. Roosevelt was "insincere" in submitting his soak-the-thrifty tax proposal so late in the session and that it was a "political gesture."

Harrison replied that "not another senator but the senator from Delaware" believed that.

'Wet' Pastor May Resign

By Associated Press

Atlanta, June 28—The Rev. H. E. McBrayer said today he probably would resign from the Methodist ministry as a result of his conviction by a church board of "unministerial conduct" in connection with anti-prohibition activities.

The pastor, who campaigned for repeal of the Georgia dry laws in a recent referendum, was held by a jury of 13 fellow-ministers to have been guilty of "gross imprudence."

He was ordered suspended until the next annual conference of the North Georgia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

A charge of "immorality" preferred because of his participation in the campaign was not sustained.

McBrayer, who occupied the pastorate of the Lakewood Heights Methodist Church here, said he would continue to conduct public services in a suburban Masonic Temple until he definitely decides his future course.

New Deal Bar To Recovery Mills Says

By Universal Service

New York, June 28—New Deal policies are preventing recovery, Ogden Mills, Hoover Secretary of the Treasury, charged here.

Mills engaged in a joint discussion with U. S. Senator Barkley of Kentucky in "America's Town Meeting of the Air," broadcast from Town Hall by NBC.

OGDEN MILLS

Senator Barkley, enumerating achievements of the Roosevelt administration, attacked its critics as destructive devotees of the "sacred policy of negation."

Ascribing the depression to the World War, Mills pointed out its immediate cause was the cessation of productive investment by business, due to "general instability and growing dangers."

He insisted economic conditions at present were favorable for recovery, and that "there is enough work waiting to be done to put millions to work on constructive enterprise at normal American wages." However, he continued:

CALLS FOR AMERICANISM

"The trouble is that, whereas economic uncertainties have vanished, political uncertainties cast an ever-lengthening shadow. What stands between the American people and prosperity today is their government.

"The wheels of industry would soon be turning at full speed if, instead of trying to re-make us, the government would be content to make us well; if, instead of attempting to impose a new system, that will not work, it would permit the one we know will, to do so, and if, instead of pursuing all sorts of foreign 'isms,' it would but turn to a tried and proved Americanism."

Mills declared recovery cannot come "as long as the administration seeks to transform America into a collectivist state; as long as it destroys savings, discourages thrift, penalizes success, hampers enterprise and smothers the vital energies of a free economy."

DEFENDS NEW DEAL

Barkley said:

"I challenge those who complain that we have robbed the people of their liberty to point to a single example not based on public welfare. I challenge those who weep over the destruction of the states and the demise of the Constitution to indicate where we have stabbed it and where it is buried.

"We have not destroyed the Constitution. We are not destroying it. But if the time ever comes when it shall be preserved only by assigning it to a shelf in some museum where it may be seen but never used, then the people themselves will destroy it and make another in its place."

NEW BRUNSWICK
Swept by Liberals

Saint John, N. B., June 28—The greatest turnover in the political history of New Brunswick was recorded at the polls here when Liberals under A. A. Dysart won 43 out of the 48 Legislature seats. Premier L. P. D. Tilley and all the members of his government met defeat.

Conservatives won only five seats. Hon. F. C. Squires, speaker of the last House, is most prominent among the surviving Conservatives.

Fire Chiefs Elect

New Bedford, June 28—Fire Chief David A. DeCourcy of Winchester today became the president of the New England Association of Fire Chiefs.

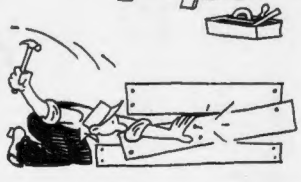
Bond Clothes Alteration Sale Starts Today

Excuse our sawdust!



We're building an enormous new street level store—right here at our old stand. Our present selling floor hasn't been touched. But downstairs, they've torn things all to pieces. Carpenters and steel workers are all over the place. Our show windows are ripped out. A high, board fence surrounds everything. And all this, right at the start of a busy Summer season! Well, we can't afford to sit back and wait until our new home is ready. We've got to keep things moving. And to do it, we're putting a healthy price-cut on everything in the store. We're going to turn this building job into the greatest money-saving event this town has seen in many a day. You'll have to come in through the temporary entrance. But it's a safe bet you'll find it worth while!

2 TROUSER SUITS regularly sold this season up to $30 — 19.85

2 TROUSER SUITS reduced from our higher-priced stocks — 22.85

Important! These price-cuts will remain in effect only until our new store is completed. So if you need new clothes, don't wait. Take the elevator to the second floor—step out on our present selling floor—pick any suit from our regular stock—and save plenty!

This Is Life

by

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Below I reprint the last page of two of a graduation address I delivered last evening in Worcester before the graduating class of the Becker College of Business Administration. I hope it is not too idealistic.

Third parties are in the air. The farmer-labor party is already an actuality.

Robert E. Rogers

Business men may in self defence have to drop their traditional individualism and band into a business men's party, forgetting the old party labels, and exert every ounce of their united political strength to keep private business going under conditions of more difficulty than business men faced in the past.

The older generations skimmed off the cream of cheap raw materials, rich markets and easy profits.

Your generation and many to come will have to do with the skimmed milk. You will have to make bricks without straw. You will have to do business under the difficult European conditions, not the easy conditions of the American past.

I congratulate you on this fact. The American business man of the future will perforce be quicker, warier, harder working, shrewder, more self-sacrificing, harder boiled, tougher, and better trained than his predecessor.

Up to now the American business man has been the spoiled child of the nation and of the world.

Henceforth you will face the truth and the truth shall make you free, but disciplined and competent as you never were before.

Tough on Girls

Nor is it going to be altogether easy sledding for the girls. For half a century there has been a constant and easy influx of young women into business and the professions.

The public school system has made itself over to give the girls their chance. Progress has been extraordinarily rapid and comparatively easy.

Our home conditions and our social ethics have both been transformed by a new creature in history, not so much the young girl on the loose as the young woman who manages to keep and engage in business at the same time.

I do not see it so easy hereafter. There are positive evidences that a movement is gathering to insist that women stay at home and that the jobs be given to the husbands and brothers and fathers.

In all public occupations, municipal, state and federal, in the educational services and others, it is going to be increasingly difficult for the married woman or the girl from a comfortable home to retain her job.

Feminists profess to see in this an assault on women's rights. Much of the labor which has put the business and professional woman in her place may have to be done over again.

You, too, sitting in front of me, may once more have the chance to be pioneers in the right of women to be more than domestics. The recent developments in the status of women in Nazi Germany should be enough to teach you to be on the alert, determined, and organized.

This may not sound very cheerful to you, and I do not believe it sounds as alarming as it would have sounded to your predecessors in June, 1929.

They expected everything and saw no reason why they should not have everything. You have learned to be contented with less, to be thankful that you have something, not everything.

It is probable that, barring an utterly destructive war on our own soil—which will not occur—nothing that you will face will be worse than what you and your people have faced in the past six years.

Conditions will improve. They always have. We have yet lived through only about half the number of years the country lived through in the depression of 1873.

"No Revolution"

Conditions have not been normal, but they have by no means been revolutionary. There is no reason to expect a politico-economic revolution in this country—unless the administration provokes one and carries it through.

And when better times do come I believe that these depression years will have taught you the right philosophy and the proper attack which will enable you to bring business back to its old traditions under which my father and his contemporaries lived before the world went altogether mad.

You may not believe that this is idealistic advice. I do. I believe that individualism is an ideal, that conservatism is an ideal, and moderation, and common sense. I believe that private business and private profits are ideals.

I believe that earning your living and receiving wages in proportion to the work you do are ideals.

I believe that the man who furnishes the capital is as worthy of his hire as the man who furnishes the labor. I believe that management earns its share of the profits.

I believe that under these ideals we shall make more progress than under all the so-called ideals with which we are be-labored.

There and there alone lie security and the more abundant life, not under the experiments of imitation fascism and imitation bolshevism.

For the individual, the best inspirations are old, old, neglected ones.

Work hard, save your money, watch your opportunities, play fair, keep on growing, keep well informed, take part in your communities' affairs.

Make business one of your responsibilities, but not the only one. Crack down on the knave and the fool, respect the wise man, and help smash the public enemy.

Provide for your family and your children. Leave them a bit better off than you were.

Think yourself a bit better than anyone else, and work to make others acknowledge it. Read occasionally in the Almanac of Poor Richard by one Benjamin Franklin. It's not entirely outdated even yet.

"See-est thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand well ahead of kings."

30,000 MOOSE DUE TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Indicating that the annual convention of the Loyal Order of Moose in Boston from June 30 through July 7 will be one of the biggest in history was given at the pre-convention stag party at the Hotel Bradford.

Twelve hundred members of the Moose from Greater Boston gathered.

W. Lee Provol, regional director, stated today that advance interest indicates that there may be more than the expected 30,000 Moose and women of the Moose in Boston for the ceremonies.

Honorable Joseph F. O'Connell, dictator of the Boston Lodge; Charles M. Daley, treasurer, and William Larkin, secretary, as well as James M. Griffin, former past dictator of the Boston Lodge, were among the officers at the stag party.

PARADE ON JULY 4

The feature of the convention will be the parade on July 4 which will finish with patriotic exercises on Boston Common.

Delegates from all parts of the world will arrive here on the week-end.

The convention is expected to boost N. E. business by some $2,000,000 with elaborate plans completed for the Moose to visit various historical and amusement centers as well as special days for the visitors at Narragansett Park and Fenway Park where Moose members of the Boston Red Sox will be honored.

PLAN BEAUTY CONTEST

Another feature of the convention will be a beauty contest at the Moose grand ball with the winner to be given a trip to Hollywood as well as an expensive wardrobe.

Five thousand new members will be initiated into the order next Sunday night.

FLAG SELLING Swindler Hunted

Lawrence, June 28—A swindler who has been making calls on houses in the district selling small flags the proceeds of which he said would go to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was being sought today by police. V. F. W. officials said his solicitation was not authorized.

NELSON FIGHTS 48-Hour Bill

Charging that the City of Boston would have to pay a million more in taxes if the 48-hour bill for state institution employes goes into effect, Eric A. Nelson, president of the Real Estate Owners and Tenants League of Boston, today asked all home owners to demand the defeat of the bill.

ESSEX TO PICK Senator in Fall

PENSION QUESTION EDITOR BESEIGED BY LETTERS

By the Pension Editor, Boston Evening American.

Boston Evening American readers are showing unflagging interest in the social security bill, or federal pension act.

Like a tidal wave, the letters flood in to the pension editor.

While the pension editor will endeavor to answer all communications through this column, the correspondents must watch the column daily, for the editor, in answering a query, is at the same time answering dozens of similar questions.

In writing to the pension editor, please ask specific questions. The editor cannot answer requests for general information.

Do not send for pension application blanks. Application blanks are available in your home town or city.

APPLY AT LOCAL BUREAU

Apply at you local old-age assistance bureau.

Questions today:

Q—We have a little home, assessed for $3000, but our savings will be used up within a month or two. If we apply for the pension, can we keep our home?
F. E. D., Malden.

A—Yes. The old-age assistance bureau will make arrangements to re-assess your home to $1500 (providing there is no mortgage), which is the maximum real estate equity allowed.

Q—I own a one-room camp in New Hampshire taxed for $350. May I keep that if I apply for the pension. Mrs. S. M., Ayer.

A—Yes.

Q—I am receiving soldiers' relief, since I am a wounded veteran. Will I also get the new pension on the 65th birthday?
J. M. C., Malden.

A—No. If you already receive a pension of some kind, such as soldiers' relief, you are not eligible for the new pension.

Q—I am 85 years of age, unable to work or even walk. What do I have to do to get the pension.
P. A., Quincy.

A—You must take out citizenship papers.

WHAT OF A CRIPPLE?

Q—Please explain what a cripple can do to get relief.
V. D., Ayer.

If the cripple is less than 21 years old, he can apply for assistance through the state department of public welfare. Under the new pension law there is a special fund for crippled children (under 21). If 65 or over, the new law provides regular pensions. If the crippled individual is over 21 and less than 65 he must apply for public welfare.

Q—I live at a home for the aged. Am I eligible for the pension?
Mrs. D. L., Brookline.

A—Yes. If the private charity (such as a home for old aged) cannot take care of all the individual's need, the pension fund will supply the extra necessary. No public ward or individuals maintained in public institutions are eligible.

Q—How can citizenship be proved, if I am a naturalized citizen and have lost my papers?
S. S., Brockton.

A—You must get record at the federal naturalization bureau of your state. (At the Federal Building, Boston, for Massachusetts.) Or registration as voter may be given as proof.

Whipple Stills Comet "Worries"

Don't worry.

The new tailless comet, discovered recently, will never strike the earth, according to Dr. Fred L. Whipple of the Harvard Observatory staff.

"This comet, known as the Jackson comet, is moving away from the earth's orbit, and there is no possibility whatsoever of its striking us," he said.

"It will soon fade out and will not appear again for many years. As far as records reveal, this is a new comet never before identified. It is not, however, unique in having no large tail that can be seen. Many comets have no tails. This one may have a small one which is invisible to us."

WOMEN THREATEN TEA PARTY

Boston is ready to stage another "tea-party", against "arrogant taxation," share-the-wealth schemes and other such administration plans, a contingent of Massachusetts women, directed by socialites and professional leaders, warned Washington today.

Telegrams were dispatched to Senators Walsh and Coolidge declaring that 100,000 women will join in such a protest move. Eleven prominent Republican women, including Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast and Mrs. J. Hasbrouck Le Fevre, signed.

First of Eastern Yacht Club Dances at Marblehead

By Betty Alden

OVER THE TOPMASTS of hundreds of trim white yachts riding silently in Marblehead harbor, last evening, floated the laughing and singing of the revellers on the broad verandahs of the Eastern Yacht Club . . . for last evening this fashionable club was the center of merrymaking. A large throng gathered to inaugurate for another season the popular series of dinner dances . . .

Dinner was served on the porches, and between courses the real lovers of dancing couldn't seem to whet their appetite for this favorite pastime . . .

MRS. B. DEVEREAUX BARKER, JR.

In the center of an attractive group was Mrs. Morgan Harris, sporting a golden tan which was well set off by her white sheer dress . . . Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, Jr., wore a flowered taffeta frock and with Mr. Gray was in a large party including her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Donham . . .

Royal Purple Gown

THE JUNIOR DEVEREUX BARKERS, who play a prominent part in Marblehead social life, were there, and no Marblehead party would be complete without Margot Emerson and her fiance, Bob Miller . . . Deep royal purple fashioned the gown worn by animated and radiant Margot . . .

Mr. and Mrs. James Rothwell were there also . . . and enjoying the shifting panorama of lights and surf which spread out before the clubhouse were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Searle, Mr. Ward Paine, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Crowninshield, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hunneman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dane and many another bright social light of the North Shore . . .

A favorite summer pastime of the girls and boys in the middle teens is "roughing it" on a ranch and one of the latest enthusiasts to pack her riding equipment and hop a train for Montana is Martha B. Young of Brookline, the sub-debutante daughter of Governor Roy Young of the Federal Reserve Bank and Mrs. Young . . . She will be located on a ranch near Missoula . . . and in the fall will continue her studies at Miss Lee's School in preparation for her debut the following season . . .

Plan Yachting Cruise to Norway

WHILE THEIR SISTERS and cousins are prosaically scraping decks and beating back and forth in the safe confines of the North Shore harbors, Johnnie Saltonstall, Jr., and Wells Morss, sons of prominent Back Bay families, are having a taste of life as real "old salts," aboard the schooner Wanderbird, which just set sail from Gloucester for a cruise along the scenic coast of Norway and Sweden . . .

Bill Hayward of Franklin, Edward Seaver, 3d, of New Bedford and Bill Knowles of New Bedford are other sons of well known families who are spending the summer seeking adventure on the high seas aboard this same schooner . . .

Hopping an ocean liner to spend the summer touring the capitals of Europe, as so many socialites are doing for a summer pastime, are Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell and her son, Ben, just graduated from Harvard . . .

Attractions for Those Staying at Home

FOR THOSE WHO HAVE to spend the summer months in the city, Boston is becoming a delightful place in which to stay this season . . . when the moon comes up and the cool breezes blow in from the harbor, there is hardly a more pleasant diversion than dining and dancing in the open air . . . The Sky Garden is drawing crowds of young socialites every evening, and so is Ten Acres, which is just a perfect twilight ride from town, over the old Post Road . . . Both of these rendezvous have been the scenes of merry pre-wedding parties all during the month of roses . . .

For a restful and inspiring evening, one has only to go as far as Symphony Hall where the Pops are proving a joy to all on warm evenings . . . Arthur Fiedler, who conducts the Pops, will soon be waving his baton at the Esplanade concerts on the Charles river embankment . . .

Deserting the frivolous social life of Gotham for the summer months, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis (Evelyn Ames) are vacationing at Borderland, in North Easton, the summer home of Evelyn's parents, Professor and Mrs. Oakes Ames . . . Evelyn and John are celebrating their second wedding anniversary on July 1 . . .

It was a lovely all white wedding. The bride carried a bouquet of white orchids and a white prayer book and all the attendants were costumed alike in white organdie with garlands of small white flowers in their hair. Their flowers, blue larkspur and red roses, lent the only color contrasts.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

GROWING OLD?

I'm growing old!
Seems like a joke
Someone's played on me.
Inside I'm just As I always was—Excited, eager,
Full of fizz 'n' fight;
What's more,
I know
This inside self is TRUE—
The real Me!
These outside things—
Gray hair
And wrinkling skin,
Stiff joints
And tired eyes—
All these
Are but a mask
That doesn't really count.
And yet—the world
Believes that mask
Is ME—and says,
"She's growing old."
Then what's the use
Of yelling that I'm not?
No matter what
The breaks may be ahead,
The fact remains
I've lived
A lot of years,
And show them all—
So what's the answer?
How does one behave;
How take the days
When one is growing old?

I can, of course,
Behave in many ways—
Get sorry for myself
And wheeze and whine,
And hang my peeve,
Like crepe,
On everyone I meet.

Or I can let myself
Be poisoned
By my envy
Of the young—
Use all the time
I've left
In sneering
At gay youth—
Fouling its romance
With my filthy thoughts,
Hating its happy freedom
And belittling
Its small achievements
And its brave young dreams!

Or I can make
A racket of my age—
Impose upon the pity
And the kindness
Of my friends—
Demand gilt-edged consideration
And "respect for my gray hairs"—
Become a petty tyrant—
Not because
I'm wiser, kinder
Than my fellow men,
But because
My arches have gone flat!
My chin has doubled
And my waist line's
Shot to hell!

Or I can be K-O'd
By my own sloppiness—
Let myself "go native"—
Lag around,
Picking easy spots,
Eating like a pig,
Boring folks to tears
With lying drool about
The "good old days"
When I was Exhibit A.

Yes—
Now I'm growing old
I can do
All these things—
All these mean,
Stupid, swinish things
That old people do
To hide their selfishness,
Their lonellness and fear.
And, what's worse,
I can get by with them—
Nobody will be surprised,
For that's how
The world expects
Old people to act,

Or I can do
Something else—
Something different—
I can refuse to be
Bitter and miserable,
Envious and rebellious,
Sentimental and cowardly—
I can decline to be Ashamed of my age—
And, instead,
I can wear my years
Proudly, gallantly,
As age was meant
To be worn!

For age is not
A sign of failure—
It is not
A blight or thunder.
Age was meant to be Honorable, beautiful
And proud!
And these scars I bear,
These marks left
By reckless adventures,
Spendthrift furies
And heartbroken tears,
Are not social errors—
They are the signs
Of brave
And abundant living—
They are the
Croix de guerre
Of the years!

Why should I
Who have lived life full,
Taking all the chances,
Expect, now,
To look or act
Like a new laid egg?
I don't!
I'm glad
I look my age!
And I'm going on,
Daring to look it,
Daring to live it,
Daring to believe now,
As I did at sixteen,
That life itself,
No matter how it comes,
No matter what it costs,
Is the swellest break
Any creature could have!

Growing old?
Yes-s, boy!
But what of it?
Bring on your wrinkles—
Trot out your lumbago—
You can't scare me!

Martha Lee Gives Market Tips

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

These first warm days may not bring out the best in you and me, but they certainly help native production of fruits and vegetables. This week-end in the markets there is from nearby farms asparagus, spinach and the last of the rhubarb.

Among the newer vegetables appearing are beets, cabbage, cauliflower and the first tender sweet peas.

Melons and berries are likewise appearing, including blueberries, blackberries, raspberries, plums, watermelons and cantaloupes. But before we turn to these, a final word for strawberries before they disappear completely from the market.

STRAWBERRIES AT BEST

Native strawberries are at their very best—large, firm, flavorful berries—and they are begging to be used at most inexpensive prices—two quarts for 25c. Hurry if you are planning to preserve some for the future, as a sparkling jelly or jam or the fruit itself, to be used in numerous ways.

In canning strawberries remember that a very high temperature for an extra long period of rapid boiling will destroy the color and flavor of this delicate fruit. It is recommended to process only in a hot water bath with the water boiling gently. Also the strawberry contains so much water that unless it is replaced with syrup the berries may rise to the top of the jar. This is particularly applicable to the jar-cooked method (this does not, however, affect the keeping quality).

In putting berries up by this method, pack them as firmly as possible without crushing into hot jars, fill with syrup made with three parts sugar to two parts of water, partly seal and process in a hot water bath for 20 minutes. Remove from the canner and seal immediately. If cooked in an open kettle add one cup of sugar and two tablespoons of water to each quart of berries. Boil gently for 15 minutes, let stand in the kettle overnight to keep the berries from rising to the top. In the morning bring to boil and pack into hot, clean jars. Seal immediately.

"SUN CANNED"

"Sun canned" strawberries are popular. To make them, place berries in a can, cover with hot syrup made of three parts of sugar to two parts of water and cook below the boiling point for eight minutes. Let stand in the sun covered with a glass bowl for six to 12 hours. In this way the berries become saturated with the syrup and will not rise to the top of the jar.

In making strawberry jelly, the juice may be combined with equal parts of the tinner time measure of apple juice. However, an easier way of making jelly and retaining all the strawberry flavor is to make it with commercial pectin. Strawberries, in jams or preserves, may be combined with pineapple, mint or rhubarb to give a varity of attractive jars for the pantry shelf.

In recommending lamb as the best buy of the week, I had in mind the correspondent who writes, "I agree it is the best buy, but I had so much lamb this spring I am beginning to bleat." Pity the poor cookery columnist, who must go on saying the same thing week in and week out! There are many attractive ways of preparing the various cuts of lamb.

The shoulder can be stuffed and rolled; the leg of lamb can be served with mint sauce or with pineapple or minted pears. The chops can be used in a quick mixed grill or the cheaper neck slices can be baked in a casserole. The crown roast of lamb is a delightfully attractive complete meal. Or for a hearty picnic suggestion we give you lamb stew. Broilers are likewise a good suggestion. They can be stuffed and roasted, either with bread stuffing, rice or a nut stuffing.

They vary in price from 27-35c a pound. Ham is ideal to have on hand all during the summer for those quick pick-up meals or picnics. Sells from 28 to 31c. Buy either a whole or half ham, depending upon the size of your family.

DEVONSHIRE SHORTCAKE

6 slices buttered bread
1 quart strawberries
1 cup sugar
Whipped cream

Crush berries with sugar. Trim crust from bread and line a buttered bowl with the slices, cutting corners and fitting pieces together. Pour in berries and cover with bread. Put plate on top, weight down, and let stand in refrigerator 24 hours. Turn out of mold, garnish with whipped cream and whole berries.

CREOLE-JUANITA

1 cup rice
4 cups boiling salted water
2-3 cup sugar
2 cups strawberries
Marshmallows

Cook rice in 4 cups boiling water until tender. Drain. Add 1-3 cup sugar and pack into ring mold. Boil 3-4 cup of water with 1-3 cup sugar. Add strawberries, cut in small pieces and cook until tender. Unmold rice and fill center of mold with fruit. Cover with sliced marshmallows. Put into a very hot oven until marshmallows are browned to a golden color. Serve hot, Serves eight.

DESERT HERITAGE By P. C. Wren

New Misfortune Falls on Two Convicts After They Steal Canoe From Indians

The Story So Far:

CONSUELA VANBRUGH, passenger on the S. S. Amazon, returning from South America to England, is having the happiest time of her life.

A fellow-passenger, Sir Harry Vane, prominent young Englishman, has fallen in love with her and they plan to marry at his home in England.

But at Bermuda, Manoel ("Spanish") Maine boards the ship and wrecks her plans. He recognizes Consuela as something out of his checkered past and threatens to expose her, unless she pays heavily.

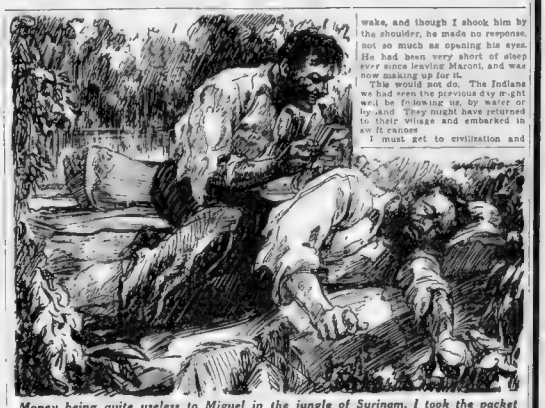
Her brother, Otis Vanbrugh, who has never heard of Maine before, sees him to get at the bottom of his story. Maine tells him an amazing story of his life of crime which has covered the world and in which he claims Consuela is involved. Twice he has been in the Foreign Legion, twice escaped, with a long series of murders and crimes behind him.

Twice he has had a great fortune in his grasp, only to lose it because of a woman. In his last Legion escapade he had buried a treasure in a deserted well in the Sahara, only to be separated from it by a life-term in the penal colony of Maroni in South America.

His whole life is now centered on getting this treasure, which will keep him forever in luxury. Things look hopeless until he becomes bosom friends with Miguel Bragonza, another Spanish convict.

Together they make a daring escape from Maroni, largely through Miguel's skill and bravery.

Spanish Maine continues his tale to Otis:



Money being quite useless to Miguel in the jungle of Surinam, I took the packet of hundred-franc notes.

MIGUEL'S advice was to wait and to watch; see what they were doing, follow them so far as possible, along the river bank; and refrain from action until it was a case of hailing them or losing them altogether.

In the event this proved good counsel, the best we could have followed, for, even as we watched, they ceased paddling, conferred awhile, and then turned the nose of the canoe in toward the bank—the opposite bank, alas.

They were going to land . . . to camp for the night perhaps . . . to lie down on the warm sand and sleep . . . possibly to leave the canoe unguarded.

And that is precisely what they did.

Doubtless they were traveling far, to or from their tribal country, paddling by day and resting by night in places that they knew to be distant from villages whose inhabitants would inevitably be hostile.

They lit a fire, cooked food, sat about talking and, one by one, lay down to sleep.

After waiting until there was perfect silence and stillness on the sandpit, Miguel removed what was left of his boots and clothing gave me his matches and money, put his knife in his mouth, slipped quietly into the water, and swam across the river, his head beneath the surface almost the whole time.

His aim was to reach the stern of the canoe, look into it, stab its occupant, if it had one—and no body more competent to deliver a sure and silent death-stroke than Miguel—then softly, gently and gradually, draw the nose of the canoe from off the sand, and return, either swimming and pushing the boat before him, or climbing into it and paddling, if that were feasible.

Once away, all would be well, as the Indians, if they awoke and saw what was happening, would have no means of following.

HIS plan succeeded. The canoe proved to be unoccupied and unguarded, the sandpit shelving and the water shallow. It was the work of a moment for Miguel to push the canoe off, step into it, take a paddle and recross the Surinam.

And here Miguel's convict-experience of river-work came in useful, for he was as much at home in a boat as he was in the water.

By striking two or three of our precious matches, I guided him to where I was waiting. A few minutes later we were out in the middle of the Surinam river, being borne along upon its gentle current toward our goal.

After what we had gone through during those last terrible weeks this was comfort, almost luxury. Scarcely need we paddle unless we wished to do so; as, happily, we were going down stream.

However, the mighty Miguel in the stern paddled hard; I, in the bow, giving an occasional touch with my paddle to keep us straight and in the middle of the current.

Nor was this the first time I had managed a canoe, having been devoted to aquatic sports both at the yacht club in the bay of Cadiz, and on the more placid inland waters of Germany.

In fact, our one problem was food; and, inasmuch as we had our fish-hooks and string, it was not insoluble.

Occasionally we went ashore, preferably on little peninsulas or islands of sand, to stretch our legs, sleep in comfort, cook our fish, and search for fruit and other vegetable food.

For a while, it was wonderful; and I began to feel that I really was on the stage of the long journey that should end at the dry well on the road to Ain Mendi where my treasure lay.

And then misfortune overtook us.

HAVING landed one evening for rest and relaxation and the cooking of our fish, Miguel, going into the bush in search of fruit and the fungus which we had found edible, satisfying, and harmless, climbed a tree to get its fruit, a large green somewhat kidney-shaped thing, having a pleasant thirst-quenching juice, of which I did not know the name.

In descending the tree he foolishly seized with both hands a rope-like creeper or liana, and slid a little way down it.

When he returned to our modest camp the insides of his hands were full of tiny splinters or thorns.

Next day they were red and swollen.

On the day after they were covered with little suppurating, festering boils.

By the evening of the fourth day they were in a horrible case, each hand really one big sore, and, apart from the acute agony of attempting to do so, he could not use them at all, could not move the fingers; could not close them.

He was thus rendered helpless and completely useless in the boat.

And on the next day we had a fright.

WE had scarcely seen signs of human beings or human habitation since we left Maroni; but, on this day, a big flat-bottomed clumsy sort of craft was pulled out from the river banks as we turned a bend, a sort of punt or scow, crowded with Indians armed with spears, bows and arrows, and the long blow-pipe through which they puff their deadly poisoned darts.

The moment they saw us they started a hullabaloo and came in our direction. Fortunately they soon got into water too deep for poling and had to take to their paddles.

Of these there appeared to be a deficiency, and I imagine that this crude flat-bottomed boat was merely a sort of fishing-raft and means of progression close along the bank in shallow water.

Anyhow, by working as I had scarcely ever worked in my life before—and that, for a man who has been a hard-labor convict, is saying something—I kept the canoe out of range of their darts and arrows, and, having got past, contrived to increase the distance between us, and to draw away.

That night we did not go ashore, and, though I could scarcely keep awake, I contrived to carry on, occasionally paddling, but, for the main part, too tired to do more than keep the boat toward the middle of the river.

In the morning, there being no sign of our pursuers, I decided to go ashore, and eat, before continuing our journey.

Miguel seemed to be ill. His arms were swollen to double their size, and a rash of boils had broken out upon his body.

WHEN I decided that I had better push on, I found he was in a heavy slumber, a sleep so deep that it was more like a sort of coma.

When I called to him he did not wake, and though I shook him by the shoulder, he made no response, not so much as opening his eyes. He had been very short of sleep ever since leaving Maroni, and was now making up for it.

The Indians we had seen the previous day might well be following us, by water or by land. They might have returned to their village and embarked in a sw..t canoe.

I must get to civilization and Paramaribo as quickly as possible. I could not afford to escape the French, only to fall into the hands of Indians, after all I had been through.

It was a case of chacun pour soi and sauve qui peut. I was ill myself, suffering from dysentery, malaria, starvation, exhaustion and exposure.

I am a person of logical mind and sound common-sense—and I am no sentimentalist. I am glad to remember that I left Miguel what I could spare; fish, fruit, a hook and line, and a few matches.

Money being quite useless to him in the jungle of Surinam, I took the packet of hundred-franc notes, in their wrapping of thin indiarubber they were intact, dry, clean and beautiful.

That wad, over half an inch in thickness, contained one hundred and twenty-six notes, each of a hundred francs—five hundred pounds.

It would take me to Ain Mendi in comfort, however roundabout the journey.

In the next instalment read how Spanish Maine pushes off alone, and makes civilization. At Pernambuco his stolen money buys what he needs—and then—?

Oil FOR THE Lamps of CHINA

By ALICE TISDALE HOBART

Master of the Flood

CHAPTER 56

(This is a serialization of the Cosmopolitan production released by Warner Bros.)

"The water's rising; it's within an inch of the top of the embankment," came McBain's excited voice. "I'm getting the oil pumps into readiness for pumping out the water; it is seeping up through the ground inside the wall."

"I'll get there as fast as I can," Stephen answered.

He gave his orders quickly to Kin to get his slicker, his boots.

"Creighton, look after thin "Creighton, look after things here," he said, "if I'm not back by morning."

When Stephen reached the citadel of oil the water stood almost at the top of the embankment. The storage grounds inside were like a great cup prepared to receive the waters.

McBain gave a sigh of relief. "We may have to let the water in to save a sudden rush. I'm glad you're here to decide."

Now was the inevitable emergency stealing upon a man at the moment of his success. No time now to consult Shanghai.

Stephen waited. The water rose another half inch. "Open the gates. Let the water in." He gave his order calmly, satisfied he had chosen the last moment when daring would not be foolhardiness.

An hour Stephen stood alone on a bit of embankment watching the destruction he had commanded. The water mounting on the godown walls covering the tins of oil, the boxes of tin plate.

Already his mind was busy with the problem of the rushing tin once the waters subsided.

Godowns Saved

The cup of the compound was full, the flood waters leveled over the cup. There the water held. A half-hour, an hour. Then in the light of his torch Stephen saw the line of water on the godown creep slowly upward.

No need to justify his act to the Company. His decision had justified itself. Had he not acted the godowns would have been swept away.

The emergency was over and the need for decision. Immediately Stephen sank himself in the organization of big Shanghai asking what they wanted done with the tin plate.

The flood's peak was gone. Stephen was helping McBain in the unloading of a tanker; a telegram was handed him.

"Put tin plate in your empty tank. Flood it with oil. Have coolies wipe it."

Stephen sent word for McBain who was down at the pontoon

"How many sheets of plate have you?" asked Stephen impatiently.

"Two hundred and fifty thousand."

"Umph," said Stephen. "two surfaces to a sheet, that means a half million surfaces."

"Coolies are hard to get," said McBain. "All helping their families in the fields after the flood."

"How many could you get, McBain?"

"Well, perhaps twenty."

Saving the Plate

Take them weeks. In the meantime the rust of the plates would be rusted.

Suddenly Stephen thought of the great tanker going back empty. Load it with the tin plate, send it down to a larger port . . . where there were plenty of coolies . . . the wiping quickly done, the plates saved.

He gave his orders. Soon the place was ringing to the chant of the coolies carrying out the boxes containing the tin plate

The tanker had gone. The compound was empty. Suddenly Stephen realized what he had done—actually disobeyed the order of the Company.

"Well, I saved the tin plate, anyway," he said to himself

But the question is, Do I get he."

In fact nothing was said by the main office in Shanghai, neither praise nor condemnation

This summer afternoon Stephen was completing the graph of his last year's business on a piece of cross-section paper

The black line rose and fell, dipping down in the summer months, rising in the winter months—the general trend of other years—but each dip and rise was several squares higher than the corresponding curve of the year before

However, the total of the year's sales fell short of the high mark Truesdale had set for the province.

Stephen saw he would have to give up the idea of reaching that total, in time to give Hester the benefit of a new house. "I would have hard to get it for her, he thought wistfully. Too late now.

The house could not be started for another year. Flood and confusion of rice had settled that. But there were more years would bring the desired home of her own. I' said.

In the Creighton compound the pandemonium of the day on the crowded city there was no other place for them to play at most threatened to burst bounds

There was a succession of servants. Amahs came and went, worn out in their efforts to get the twins to bed at night, out of bed in the morning to prevent Hester from the onslaught of her brothers.

Then Creighton decided on a boy to do amah duty and things went better. But the hong rocked to the vibrations of velocipedes ridden at top speed round the Creighton dining table

Crowds of gaping coolies often gathered on the bund below the Creighton pagoy to watch the twins vigorously performing on a trapeze

Heavy guffaws of laughter rose from them, as the boys hung over the rail chattering to them in their own language

Now and the hong indeed, look like the hotel when with too much living, to which Hester once had compared it. The kitchens were blackened with the smoke of cooking

Stephen had asked Shanghai to have the hong done over. He started work in his own apartment before the final word came, thinking he would pay for it himself, if Shanghai did not consent

Hester wanted the work finished by Christmas, for she was giving a big Christmas party. Stephen felt that he had lost some touch with Hester since the Summer of the cholera and the death of Deedee

She seemed restless nowadays and pre-occupied with her own activities. Stephen did not guess that Hester sought security, trying to build up her old sense of strength and position, once so powerfully felt, lost on the night of Dee-dee's death.

She heightened the luxury around her. It gave her security for a little, then it was gone. But if these things troubled Stephen they did not Kin. He was at least delighted with his mistress.

Now she was idle as a lady should be, a buyer of goods, a person of prestige, giving him praise.

Front Fullness And Pleats

By ANNICE BRINK

SOFT FULLNESS to sway gracefully below the hip-line is distinctly this summer's, a revival and improvement on the pleated skirts of yesteryear. In a group of chiffon frocks—lilac, purple, white or the pastels—all costing around ten dollars and looking at least ten more, we found skilful and beautiful handling of front fullness, with pleats stitched and then released, pleats all around, shirred bodices or yokes, and withal an air that is serenely feminine without being fussy, so that they might come to town with well-dressed business girls. Here is one of the most charming, with shirred vest, freesias or violets on the shoulder, and front pleats. If you wish for shopping information on this group of chiffons, phone or write Annice Brink, Fashion Editor (LIBerty 4000).*

Making Most of It

It is difficult to arrive at a makable major suit game when one player has a suit of only fair strength and his partner has less than adequate trump support.

Proper bidding will at times overcome this inherent disadvantage.

The following deal furnishes an excellent example. It was well bid by Richard L. Frey, the country's Number 1 ranking tournament player, and Siegfried Klaber, known principally as the inventor of chemical playing cards but recognized as one of the leading players of Europe

The hand took place in a tournament at Crockford's Club in New York. Mr. Frey was across South and Mr. Klausner, North.

South, Dealer
North-South vulnerable

	♠ J6 ♡ Q J8 ◇ A 10 4 ♣ A 10 8 3
♠ K 5 ♡ K 9 7 4 ◇ 6 5 ♣ Q J 9 5 4	North West East South	♠ 10 9 4 3 ♡ A J 10 6 5 3 ◇ 7 2 ♣ K 2
	♠ Q 8 7 2 ♡ 2 ◇ K Q 10 9 5 3 ♣ 7 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣ (1)	Pass	2 ◇ (2)	Pass
3 ◇ (3)	Pass	3 NT (4)	Pass
4 ♣ (5)	Pass	Pass (6)	Pass

(1) Mr. Frey's strong distribution justifies an opening bid with the South hand.

(2) Mr. Klausner explores the suit possibilities of the hand before bidding notrump. His distribution and honor-tricks justify a response of two notrump

The two-diamond response is forcing for one round, so Mr. Klausner is confident of having a chance to bid notrump later.

(3) South withholds a raise in diamonds in order not to misrepresent his honor-trick holding and lend his side into an unmakable slam. He feels that the danger of missing a game is not so great as the danger of reaching too high a contract.

(4) This is the normal bid on Mr. Klausner's hand.

(5) Mr. Frey is unwilling to play at notrump because of his unbalanced distribution. He plans to reach five diamonds unless Mr. Klausner can support spades, in which case it is important to show the five-card spade length

This is an excellent bid because it takes advantage of a free opportunity to give additional information and yet retain every opportunity to play at a safe final contract

(6) Mr. Klausner has just enough support for spades to pass. There is a possibility that three tricks may be lost at either diamonds or spades, in which case game will be possible at spades only.

The four-spade contract was easily made, whereas five diamonds would have been set. All that was required to make four spades was to use proper technique in the play of the trump suit.

The opening lead of the Queen of clubs was taken by the Ace. South then returned to his hand with a diamond and led a low spade toward the Jack.

This allowed West to take his King, but then South had three top cards in the spade suit and could draw the opponents' trumps without further loss.

In all, he lost only three tricks —one in spades, one in hearts and one in clubs

Child SUFFERS IF MARRIAGE IS Cheapened

By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

It's a pity to make divorce a cat-and-dog affair, particularly if there are children—yet, going to the opposite extreme, is the pink-tea divorce, popular at present, a really edifying spectacle?

Surely this business of wife and ex-wife behaving as if they had one thing in common can be carried too far!

A popular author, being Renovated, shares her apartment with one described as a "close friend" who is also "taking the cure." Before the ink is dry on their two decrees, the author marries the friend's ex-husband.

A pair of suburban matrons journey arm-in-arm to Reno, where they, too, double up while acquiring the coveted residence —as soon as both win their divorces they exchange mates, with a double wedding"

HER ATTITUDE

When a wife takes not only divorce but her successor with such amiable lightness, one wonders just how seriously the complaisant lady ever took love, marriage and husband. Yet these are none of them trivial details. Mates should not be exchanged as casually as Christmas presents. Being a failure in married love and life is perhaps, if religion does not forbid, something to write off the books—but not with a smile and a kiss for one's supplanter. A divorce, no more than a major operation, would seem to be an occasion for serving tea.

In Eastern harems the rival and older wives are supposed to show sisterly affection toward the younger ones who find favor in my lord's eyes. But must a Western wife carry tolerance and broadmindedness to the point of benign friendship for the next lady her husband marries? To many there is something faintly nauseating—as well as something decidedly not human—in that attitude.

The old-style divorce with recriminations and accusations, with jealousy and rapacity rampant, was a disgraceful performance, too. A mastery of Providence shared—with children perhaps a living reminder of it—ought to prevent, as far as possible, a wife's name or a husband's from public shame. If a parting of the ways must come, the ceremony is never improved by a mud-slinging contest.

Still, giving a divorce or obtaining one with decency and restraint ought not to mean that both are forgotten in an ultra-sophisticated effort to treat the whole affair as something of the slightest importance. To me the modern divorces it is as if all hands were chanting feverishly the refrain of the Gilbert and Sullivan patter song—"It really doesn't matter—doesn't matter—doesn't matter."

ALL MATTERS

It DOES matter, when marriage, heaven and most of life's adventures of humanity, goes to smash! It DOES matter, when children are hardpressed—yet their parents live. It DOES matter when two people, who might have been happy, hurt or bore or infuriate each other to the point where human endurance fails. And disloyalty matters

There is no reason why a woman should talk scandal about her ex-husband's second wife, or sue her for alienation of affections, or hold up alimony damages over her head.

But how are you going to impress your children with the splendid seriousness of marriage, with the beauty and deep satisfaction of a friendship, as an ideal if you hand over their father with a smile of forgiving affection to a woman friend "both members of this club"? The more one thinks of it, the more natural and normal a little old-fashioned hair-pulling seems! When divorce is pink tea, marriage becomes a joke, pride and dignity are cheapened, memory degraded.

Mrs. Beeckman on Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I made the acquaintance of a young man about six months ago through a business deal that kept us together for about two weeks. Last week I met him accidentally as I had to pass his office. He stopped me and asked me in.

I went in and we spoke about the work we had done together. He then asked if he might take me out or if he could stop at my apartment for a cigarette some time

On the following Sunday I telephoned him and invited him for dinner in my home. He gave me an excuse for not coming, but I could tell from his voice that he was surprised by my invitation, and that he misunderstood me. You see, I live alone.

Please tell me if there is anything I can say to him now that will change his opinion of me, or is it better not to mention it? I will be seeing him again sometimes as my business takes me into his building. Reader.

I can't help feeling that you misinterpreted this man's invitation. After all, he had extended a kindness to you, and had indicated that he would like to come to see you at home.

Your invitation to him was hospitable and appropriate, and I don't see how he could have misunderstood such a friendly invitation. Perhaps you had such a definite thought in your mind that your invitation wasn't appropriate that you transferred the thought to him.

He may have been in a hurry to keep the appointment that he had, and the haste got into his voice as it sometimes very naturally will.

In any event I would not, if I were you, make any point of his not accepting, and by no means would I mention it to him by word of mouth or by letter. The thing to do is to hide your time, and leave the next move up to him. You have made a pleasant and friendly gesture of hospitality to him—now leave the next gesture to him.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Inexpensive Sun-Tan Oil Assures Honey-Beige Skin Tone

When you see the lovely color work in the new picture, "Becky Sharp," you will see the natural beauty of pretty Frances Dee.

This girl has not had a spectacular success in Hollywood, and yet her talent and her beauty merit stardom. But from now on, Frances Dee's name will be listed among those of America's favorite screen actresses.

Like so many other girls whose beauty is the result of intelligent living, this unassuming and beautiful girl believes walking and outdoor sports are essential to health

Every day finds Frances Dee riding, swimming, playing tennis or hiking through the Hollywood hills, dressed in comfortable sport clothes and with her hair and skin properly protected against the California sun and coastal winds

And don't forget that Frances Dee is a mother and a devoted wife. Her home duties as well as her career exercise options on her time. Yet she realizes that exercise, skin and hair care preserve the beauty which is making her life a successful one.

You, too, no matter how busy you think you are, can find time for getting out into the open, for bathing in the sun. What a cure out-of-door life is to jangled nerves and a tired brain!

Buy yourself an inexpensive cotton sun suit and a bottle of sun tan oil and find yourself a spot in the sun—on the roof, at the beach, out on the lawn—where you can stretch out and let those healing sun rays caress your body.

Let me give you the name of another new sun tan oil which is really a skin emollient, for it prevents peeling, burning and sour baking. And when you use it generously each time you sunbathe, it gives you a healthy-looking golden tan—which is beauty for any woman!

This oil does not sell for a fancy price, and it is a reliable product. By the time you have used up a bottle, you will have renewed vigor and, certainly, new beauty. Why not equip yourself today? A bad sunburn is more disastrous to beauty than a hard cold. So don't get one

Answers to Readers' Beauty Problems

Question—I would like to know the name of the herb pack which you mentioned recently My skin is in poor condition, and I would like a complexion diet. Also, what is a good, mild soap for the skin. My skin is very pale and sallow looking, is castor oil good for making the eye-lashes long?

Revere.

ALYCE.

Answer—Sorry, but I never mention trade names in this column. You will have to write to me again and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish the names of these articles. I have a 12-Day Complexion diet for clearing the skin. This is a lengthy diet and naturally cannot be published here. There are three excellent medicated soaps —sulphur, carbolic and boric acid—that are good for skins of your type. There is a special cream for promoting the growth of eyelashes that would be much nicer and easier to use than castor oil. This cream is very reasonably priced, too. If you want the names of any of these articles, let me know.

Questions—Few weeks ago my chum sent in for your One-Week-Bulk-Pack for blackheads and whiteheads. She followed directions very carefully and her skin is so improved that I hardly recognized her when I saw her a few days ago. Will you please be so kind as to send this same leaflet to me. If there is any charge I will be glad to pay it.

DOT, Arlington.

Answer—There is no charge for this leaflet. It is free to all our readers. However, I must ask you to write to me again and this time enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply. I am pleased to hear of your friend's good results. This pack has cleared up hundreds of cases of blemished skin

Question—Do you approve of buttermilk as an aid to the complexion? I usually drink a glass or so of buttermilk a day, and have a very nice complexion. Is it ever used as a substitute for water when cleansing the face? If so, how is it applied"

D. C. E., Watertown.

Answer—Buttermilk is both a food and cosmetic, useful in all seasons of the year, but especially desirable during warm weather. It is generally considered excellent for the complexion, and is a benefit for the system. When water is not used on the face the milk is put on freely, wetting a soft cloth and sopping the face, neck and chest thoroughly. No soap is required. This is at once washed off in warm water to which about a teaspoonful of borax is added to a basinful of water. Press buttermilk is then patted on with the finger, letting it dry

Question—What causes ridged nails. Mine have been this way for nearly a year, and the condition does not seem to improve. Someone told me that it might be due to improper diet. Will you please advise me regarding this?

Rosemary L., Revere.

Answer—Ridged finger nails are caused by diet deficiency, it has been pretty well established Try drinking three glasses of milk a day, and eat more lettuce and green vegetables. Drink plenty of orange juice. Use a cuticle cream freely. If no cuticle cream is found among your beauty effects, and you don't want to invest in one, apply cold cream, lanoline or mineral oil. Friction gently. That is part of the treatment

Question—Will you please tell me of some reliable salve to reduce the bust? I am quite thin but have an abnormally large bust, so naturally am very anxious to reduce it. I have not the patience to try any exercise.

Billie K., Boston.

Answer—Sorry, but I have never recommended creams or salves for bust reducing. The best way to reduce this part of the body is to wear a rubber brassiere. Sponge the skin surface every morning with cold water. Friction lightly with a coarse towel. And swing Indian clubs. Or if you don't like clubs, swing the arms high and wide, flexing the muscles of the chest. My set of bust exercises are not strenuous and really will help you if you keep at them systematically for a while. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for these bust exercises.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Does New Love Excuse Girl For Jilting A Fine Man?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LOVE and a marriage license, if they're both the real thing, are, I suppose, all that is actually needed to start out on a happy married life. Youth, health and hopefulness I take for granted.

All the rest of it can be classified as frills.

It is true that most girls and a few men greatly like the excitement and drama of a wedding, with the chance, for once in one's life, of playing the leading role to an admiring audience.

It is also true that most couples, however young and however love-enchanted, are influenced a good deal by the matter of economic security.

But here's a girl who threw over her highly eligible fiance, scattered all her wedding plans to the four winds and, because of the irresistible attraction of a charming and penniless young lover, stripping herself free of everything except youth, love and happiness.

Was she wise? Or foolish?

SHORT ACQUAINTANCE

"If anybody else in the world understands me, Miss Fairfax," she writes to me very appealingly, "I know that you will. Listen to what I have done. Jilted a perfectly grand man, with lots of money, who adores me. Cancelled my wedding, returned my presents. You can guess how the family take it!

"And all on account of a boy I have known only two months. But want a boy! He has a little job and no have I. We are going to be married in a day or two. What Heaven IS going to be!

"It may be true that two can't live as cheaply as one, but two can be a million times happier than one, and we're going to prove it.

"Oh, Miss Fairfax, we were made for each other. If you could see us together you would know. I'm sorry for the disappointment I've caused, but not sorry enough to regret my laughing all day long and staying awake all night just from happiness. I never dreamed before what love could be. Isn't it too wonderful that I found out in time?"

CERTAINTY

You will notice that this love-intoxicated young creature doesn't ask me for my advice or my approval. She has a certainty inside herself that is guiding her. Apparently, she knows.

So although I might hesitate to advise a girl to act as this one has—to disregard prudence, fidelity to her first lover, respect for her family's wishes—nevertheless, now that she has taken this daring step I can only applaud her courage.

It isn't admirable to marry a man you no longer care for, especially when your Heart has very definitely strayed elsewhere. Why reproach this girl for being truthful, brave and capable of love?

So I will merely hope that the youth who is responsible for the ardor she so charmingly expresses deserves his luck. And may they be adorably happy forever after!

HOPES SHE'LL LET HIM ALONE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Every young idiot thinks no one else ever loved a girl as much as he. And that was my case exactly.

I adored Dolly (which isn't her name) and she gave me every proof of devotion a girl could give. The reason we didn't marry was the depression. Her family didn't think I made enough to take care of her comfortably, so the engagement was broken, and later I heard of her engagement to someone else.

Two months ago she waited for me as I came from work. She was wearing a huge diamond ring which she said she hated because she disliked her fiance. I told her that wasn't my problem. Since then she has written me a number of letters, met me after office hours, and just won't let me alone.

I have booked her to desist because seeing and hearing from her destroys my peace of mind.

Now I have a chance to work my way to Europe, which I am thinking of accepting. Do you think it would look cowardly—impress my friends as running away?

You're very fortunate to be in a position to travel and forget a girl who seems to be unable to make up her mind. In these United States no girl is compelled to marry a man she doesn't love no matter how much pressure is brought to bear by her parents. If she decides to make this more worldly marriage, she should not get an unhappy love affair than by traveling, and I'm so glad you try to keep a string tied to you.

There is no better way to forbave this opportunity.

Which Is the Happiest?

The Taker? Or the Giver?

SINGS William Blake, the po
"LOVE seeketh not itself to please,
Nor for itself hath aware,
But for another gives ease,
And builds a Heaven Hell's despair.
So sang a little Clod-Clay . . ."
And another one said, "Love's never meant for the MEAN!"
He meant the mean-spirited, the al-hearted. Love-for-a-day . . . ah yes, but not the glorious thingwth wings that flies against the sun, bneon and stars unmanned, tithing that can be lowly as the "Cled of Clay," and still glisten b gold; and be precious! And it is usually the Giver who knowths kind of Love and gives it open-hearted.

Most women are happiest when they love that way—in spite of their cold reason—as Givers, not Takers. Even if they seem to lose in the end and find they have given Too Much to some one who was Too Little.

Women wear their happiest faces when they are in love and LAVISHING love. When they have turned from "plans, kindred, estate, feme, a Muse," and think wholly of a man they have chosen.

In the end, sometimes, they seem to get a cold stone in return; but there is this to remember. No Love lavished was ever wasted on the bright scheme of Love Eniw. And this too . . . that when "THE HALF-GODS GO, the GODS ARRIVE!"

There may be a more worthy object for YOUR giving.
—NELL BRINKLEY.

RESPECT Child's Love for PET

By LISA GRENELLE

Do some children love their pets too much? Perhaps children shouldn't have pets if they are to become so important.

Spot is only a dog. But he is more important to Jimmy than his own sister.

And is that after all so unnatural? What comforts, pleasures or support can Jimmy get out of his fifteen-year-old or his three-year-old sister? Isn't he just a pest to the one, and living in a different world from the other?

But Spot, far from regarding him as a pest, thinks of him as a god

At least to the best of his ability he lives in any world his little master dictates

When mother is critical and father is cross Spot is worshipping. His only objective to be near Jimmy, his only desire an occasional careless caress as payment for his infinite devotion.

Everyone, child and adult alike, needs something on which to feed his pride. Someone, something to love which is dependent and inferior to himself, as well as someone stronger on whom he can lean.

As a parent cherishes his child, so every normal child cherishes his pet. It is a natural need and the best of preparations for the child's parenthood to come.

Don't quarrel with Jimmy if he lavishes too much affection on Spot.

Spot deserves it, and it shows Jimmy to have a fine, tender protective nature, a good omen for the man he is to become Respect your child's love and loyalty and grief for his pet. It is natural and fine in him.

And any love, no matter on whom lavished, is always uplifting.

Fashion Flash

YOU MAY now buy the fabric for your new flannel skirt at one counter of your pet department store and at another secure the very same yarns in the identical shade, to make your own matching sweater.

Such is the scope of the knitting craze that the canny fabric manufacturers have at last given it official recognition.

The woolen for yarns and for fabrics is dyed all at the same time, under the new botany process. Part of it is then made up into grand washable, light-weight flannels and the rest into yarns for knitting.

The yarns and the fabrics are shown together, in every shade under the sun, from delicate pastels and white to the dark browns and navy colors.

Sandwiches in Party Dress

NOVEL IN SHAPE, DELICIOUS TO EAT

TEMPTING bread-and-butter trifles for the garden tea . . . a porch luncheon . . . when you entertain at bridge.

They look oh! so tricky—these intriguing sandwiches—don't they?

But really they're as simple as A B C. It's just a matter of knowing how to make them.

Here are a few knacks of making the rolled, ribbon, checkerboard, and pinwheel sandwiches in our illustration. Have "sticky" fillings that hold the sandwiches in shape—such as butter creamed and flavored with some tempting extra ingredient, one of the rich meat spreads, cream cheese, or peanut butter. Always chill the sandwiches after making. And serve right from the refrigerator, so the fillings won't have time to soften and let sandwiches fall apart.

Method of Making

Here's how to make those ribbon sandwiches. After decrusting a loaf, cut thin slices lengthwise and spread with flavored butter or with plain creamed butter and a tasty spread. On the first slice have seasoned cream cheese; the second, watercress butter (creamed butter flavored with finely minced watercress); the third, pimiento cheese; the fourth, chicken or liver pate. Place the slices one on top of the other. Top with a fifth slice, butter side down. Wrap in wax paper, place a weight on top and put away in the refrigerator to set. Slice just before serving.

Taking Offence Too Easily

By RUBY AYRES

MANY of us do it! . . . as soon as something is said in which there might be a little underlying personal reference, we fly off at a tangent, positive that its meant for us—a barbed shaft sped by a hand which is secretly longing to "get one back" at us.

It must be nice to be one of those calm, equible people, who never suspect anyone of an unkind remark or of a sly little "dig" at a pet weakness, and who would not readily believe it were it pointed out to them. "That was meant for YOU."

Slow-witted, perhaps, such people may be called, but may they not just as well be too kindly and open-hearted to realize that everyone is not the same?

And is it not a virtue to be "slow-witted" instead of too ready to see further than one is intended to see, to read spite and venom into a merely "tease-ing" remark which was not intended to wound or to be taken seriously?

A million quarrels have been started by over-sensitiveness, a million friendships broken because one was too quick and ready to believe the worst. I know one woman who lost a life-long friend by remarking about her that she invariably "talked through her hat."

She probably did—most of us do on occasions but even so, is it any crime to voice an established truth? Only, unfortunately so few of us can bear the truth when it is even such a tiny bit derogatory.

Sunflower Motif

A FAVORITE print of the summer is a huge sunflower motif on a dark ground, the flowers being sometimes 12 inches across, in varied shades of yellow, rust and orange.

The daisy and carnation prints also are important in both daytime and evening clothes. White carnations on a deep red ground make one of the most striking designs of the season in a sheer crepe, effectively used in a dinner gown.

Swiss organdies with raised felt dots and flower patterns also are well in front of the summer fashion picture.

RECENT PREVIEWS of fall fashions, at home and abroad have stressed the importance of plumes, feathers, quills and aigrettes for hats, evening headdresses and dress trimmings for the coming season.

They say the new prominence of ostrich plumes is due to the Italian renaissance mood of fall fashions. But it's probably just every woman's ardent admiration of a sweeping plume that is responsible for the innovation.

HUGH'S IDEAS ON AVIS ARE AMAZING

CHAPTER 382

HUGH'S troubled eyes followed Lillian and Dicky out of the door of the library, and then came back to rest anxiously upon my face.

"I am afraid that unwittingly I have brought up unpleasantness," he said wordedly, but I threw up my right hand in a gesture of decided protest.

There was something deep within me that cried out against discussing my husband's actions or reactions with Hugh

"I am sure you have done nothing of the kind," I said firmly, "and in any case we haven't time to talk about it. I have to tell you what Lee Chow said, and Dr. Braithwaite—"

Hugh moved impatiently and muttered something under his breath which I pretended not to hear, for it consigned Dicky's august brother-in-law to regions infernal, and I knew that Hugh, most punctilious of men in all social nuances, would have been horribly embarrassed if he thought I had heard his slip.

"One thing I must know" he said stubbornly. "What is it that Edith Fairfax is trying to do? Of course—your husband—couldn't understand what she was trying to say, but I was afraid I did, although it seemed incredible that a woman of her breeding and background could attempt such a thing.

THE TALE CARRIER

"But—you must tell me if I heard aright and am drawing the right conclusion—is it possible that Avis Arlen repeated that story of what happened in the upper hall to Miss Farfax, and that she was trying to repeat a garbled version of it, so that your husband should hear it?"

His voice was so urgent, his eyes so compelling, that I gave the answer I otherwise should have withheld, saving that deep inner voice by the consciousness that I was not discussing Dicky.

After all, I owed nothing to either Avis Arlen or Edith Fairfax that I should protect them from Hugh's judgment upon their behavior. Yet the reluctance of any right-minded person for anything remotely resembling tale-bearing made me hedge

HEARD EDITH'S STORY

"I am not sure that Edith was intentionally trying to have Dicky hear her," I said slowly. "I was under the impression that she was simply highly amused by the little contretemps as related by Avis

"I don't think any question of could be more obdurate.

"I cannot change your opinion of course," he said, "but I must hold to my own. I must remind you that I heard her very distinctly and observed that we are kept by [illegible] she raised [illegible] trying to relate that unfortunate incident in the hall. I cannot tell you how angry I am that the temptation [illegible]

I cut him short upon the last word. I must not let him know what I knew to be the truth, that if he had caught me when I peeped as Jim, say what I have done and had reasoned me instantly. As a door would have opened a fraction if a second late for her to have seen what she had interpreted as an embrace

SAVED FROM A FALL

"I do not call it an unfortunate incident at all," I said, in as matter of fact tones as I could muster. "It would have been very unfortunate for me if you had not been there to save me from a nasty fall. But please do not talk of it any more

I won't speak of the incident again," Hugh assented promptly, adding stubbornly, "but I must [illegible] such consequences. Of course, Miss Arlen was simply a thoughtless and rather ill-bred child—I [illegible] her mother has not the [illegible] tragic [illegible] which at once to [illegible] name of humor and [illegible] Miss Fairfax [illegible] in the long run no such [illegible]

DOCTOR SAID SHE NEEDED "BULK" FOR HER CONSTIPATION"

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief to Mrs. Maneely

"Up to five years ago, I knew no end of suffering caused by constipation." I used all kinds of laxatives but only found relief till I got used to them. My physician told me to get some Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and instructed me how to use it.

"I did just as I was told by my doctor, and today I send my highest praise for what your ALL-BRAN has done for me." — Mrs. Jas. Maneely, Jr., 9 Kilburn St., Valley Falls, R. I.

"Due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

ALL-BRAN provides gentle "bulk" to help overcome common constipation. It is also a good source of vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" of ALL-BRAN is often more effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not depend upon water within the body. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not corrected this way, see your doctor.

$250,000,000 PWA JOBS PLANNED BY GOV. CURLEY

By International News Service

Washington, June 28—Governor James M. Curley of Massachusetts told Public Works Administrator Ickes today that cities and communities of Massachusetts are ready to provide $250,000,000 for public works projects on the 45 per cent federal grant-55 per cent local contribution basis.

Applications for approximately five-sixth of the projects already have been filed the Governor said.

The program is in addition to the Governor's proposal for the State to provide $35,000,000 by bond issues for 100 per cent state projects, $125,000,000 worth of improvements and construction of the Connecticut-Merrimack-Blackstone rivers which the Governor asks the government to carry on as federal projects.

"The PWA administrator said he would like to have an opportunity to discuss later with the governors of various New England states the rivers projects," Curley said.

"He would like to take up the question of sanitation and sewerage, pointing out that cows of this part of the program should be borne by the states.

"We estimate this part of the cost at about $20,000,000.

"It is possible that the New England states might allocate the $20,000,000 for the sewerage and sanitation part of the program, but it is not certain that the states can continue that amount.

"Ickes points out that if the federal government did assume all responsibility, the same situation would arise on projects all over the country."

Governor Curley said he outlined his $250,000,000 100 per cent state program to Ickes and pointed out that if all states undertook such programs the $4,000,000,000 work relief funds would become approximately $6,000,000,000.

"In this way we could maintain prevailing wage scales and have the $1100 per year per man then apply only on public welfare work," Curley said.

The city of Boston's program includes such projects as removal of the Elevated subway construction and a new city hall, was not included in the Governor's estimate of $250,000,000 available from cities and towns for a loan and grant projects. The Boston program, he said, will be handed by the mayor of that city.

The Governor went to the White House for a conference with President Roosevelt at noon. He expected to confer later in the day with Thomas H MacDonald, head of the bureau of public roads, on the state roads program, and leave for home by plane at 4 p. m.

PEIPING SAVED FROM RAIDERS

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press)

Peiping, China, June 28—Local government troops reported today a force of Japanese Manchukuo soldiers who attempted to enter the forbidden city, formerly known as Pekin.

The rebels were dispersed after a night of terror.

Martial law was declared throughout the ancient province capital. A Chinese emperor built a wall after the nation for the peace preservation forces.

The city gates at which the invaders were turned back remained closed, however and traffic was suspended throughout the city.

Kills Woman, Hangs Self

Charlton, June 28—Shot in the head four times by the man she befriended, Lucy Hunt Stewart-old spinster died today.

Fred Chase, 55, who shot her hanged himself.

The only eye-witness to the tragic ending of a story that began 30 years ago in Pawtucket, R. I. was Oscar Johnson.

A heifer at the farm owned by Alvah Hunt Mrs Hunt's brother at Richardson's Corner, Johnson was in bed when he heard a shot. Johnson ran for help. He called state police.

Two state troopers found Chase in the barn, dead by a rope around his neck from a rafter. At his feet was a 32 revolver with four empty chambers.

HINGHAM'S OLD SHIP CHURCH CELEBRATES

Climaxing Hingham's tercentenary celebration, the "Old Ship Church" will hold two services on Sunday, marking the First Parish's 300th anniversary.

In the morning the new North and South Hingham Unitarian churches will close their doors to unite in a common service at the "Old Ship" church, built in 1681.

A baptismal basin made before 1590 and ancient communion silver will be used. The Rev. Louis C. Cornish, president of the American Unitarian Association, will preach.

In the afternoon an early colonial service will be held by townspeople in Pilgrim and Puritan garb.

A horse-drawn carriage, with driver in colonial costume, will carry to the church old residents unable to climb the hill. The service will be simple and austere, repeating the customs of the 17th century.

The Rev. Charles E. Park, minister of the First Church in Boston, will preach, and the Rev. J. Harry Hooper will conduct the services.

Tonight and tomorrow night the tercentenary pageant of the town was to have its closing performances. The pageant, staged by 1200 townspeople, opened last evening before a large gathering.

Stalking in solemn dignity, painted Indians filed into the greensward at Hull's Cove to sign a treaty with the early Hingham settlers.

Garbed in their broadbrims and shoon, Puritan townsmen rose to greet their guests, and to sign the pact which made Hingham their own property.

The Reverend Peter Hobart, in the person of the Reverend Abbot Peterson, Jr., rose to denounce Governor John Winthrop, followed by a courtmartial of a detachment of Hingham militia.

Senate Chief Slips Stork; Auto Aids Blessed Event

(Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service)

Washington, June 28—A blessed event came to Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, he admitted blushingly, but—it came by automobile, not by stork.

The Republican leader of the Senate, with all the pride of true paternity, explained that he and Mrs. McNary searched the country for the "perfect baby"—and found her, in Philadelphia.

Naming her "Charlotte" (nearest they could get to "Charlie") they took her for adoption, whisked her by car back to Washington, where, with layette and crib they began the career of officialdom's candidate for leading debutante season 1953.

From first reports appears that Charlotte may be educating the senator as much as the senator plans to educate Charlotte.

DEATH DRIVER HELD FOR JURY

George Gallagher, 27, of Washington street, Stoneham, was held for the grand jury today on manslaughter charges in the first case ever to come before municipal court in which occupants of an auto preferred charges against the driver.

Gallagher, according to police, was driving an automobile on Craigie bridge June 17, it struck an upright, and a woman in the rumble seat was killed and Gallagher and two passengers were injured.

Judge Joseph T. Zottoli found probable cause on the manslaughter charge but declined jurisdiction on charges of operating negligently, leaving the scene of an accident, drunken driving and drunkenness.

$221,000 Swift Award Upset

An award of $221,000 given three Springfield residents by a board of referees for land damage when their property was taken by the state in Greenwich for the Swift River water supply project was set aside today by the full bench of the Supreme Court.

The property, a 162 acre tract, was owned by Elizabeth Maher, Thomas F. Mahan and John J. Durgan.

They paid $6800 for it in 1924, and spent $40,000 in installing a golf course and clubhouse.

The references erred, the court said, in admitting testimony of Durgan, who said the property was worth $400,000, and also in admitting the testimony of John V. Boyle, a real estate man, who said it was worth $360,000.

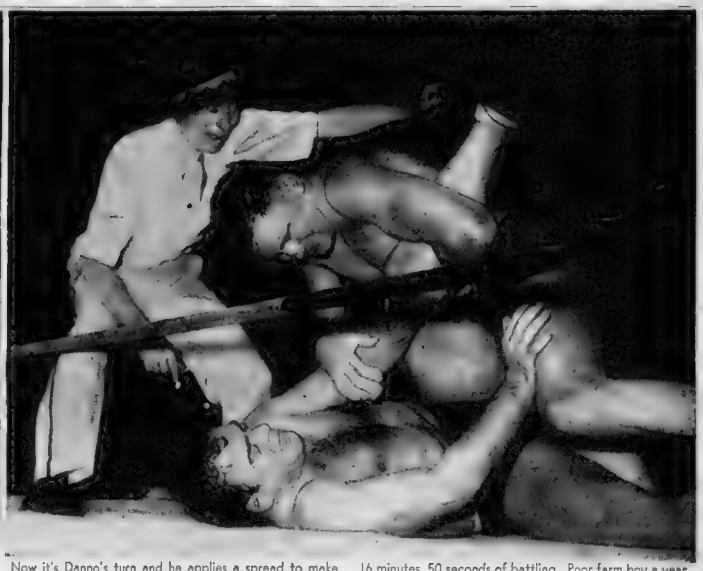
DANNO SEEKS GEORGE GO

DEFEATS LONDOS BEFORE 28,000 AT FENS

You'd think Danno was about to be torn limb from limb in this scene with Londos applying a spread hold. But Danno's tremendous strength enabled him to kick clear and deal out some punishment. Danno can take it and he also proved he could hand it out in beating Londos. A wild offensive from start to finish won for Danno



Now it's Danno's turn and he applies a spread to make Jim Londos suffer for a change. O'Mahoney continued to punish Londos and later on pinned him, after one hour, 16 minutes, 50 seconds of battling. Poor farm boy a year ago, Danno reached throne rank, and riches in matches to come, by the victory.

Youth's Symphony Trail Motif And Sports Theme

DAN O'MAHONEY SCALED the heights of glory and stormed the ramparts of victory. Which is a way of saying that he won.

Jimmy London dusted a crock of hemlock and fell off the pedestal of doom. Which is a way of saying that he lost.

The evening's business, played in a brief shatter of rain, had promised to be just a routine night among the elves of the mat, but it turned into a gala event in which Danno cut-fandanged Jimmy and harvested his half of the world wrestling title in one hour and 20 minutes.

It was a triumph of tactics for Danno, who won with a problem in fractions composed of a full Nelson, a 2-3rds Olson, a 6 and 3-8ths Anderson and a flourish of other unidentified Scandinavian.

This completely mystified the Greek, who had planned his defense against the Irish whip and kindred Hibernian mat gadgets.

Danno-Jeemy Escape Hurt

THE SUFFERING PLANKS creaked and clattered, lending their mite to the illusion of vast anguish and, though the clients who paid $1.50 to $3.30 saw their money's worth of suffering, neither Danno nor Jimmy seemed hurt 50 cents worth.

True, Danno simulated a swoon after being pressed against the platform, but a few ammonia bombs busted under his nose by his zine second revived him and he teetered away quite briskly.

The evening showed Londos in a different character from his usual straightforward, workmanlike style.

He had his favorite trick of plunging his skull into the face of the boy from Dreenlomane, Ballydehob, County Cork. And Jimmy would fumble in the light undergrowth of Danno's legs, plucking out sprigs, until the referee ordered him out of the rough and penalized him 3 yards and distance.

It was an hour and 20 minutes march over a lumpy, squashy terrain, but Danno whooshed and spouted to victory, though there were times, when Londos squateed on Danno's hams and, using his feet for oars, single sculled a full Henley distance around the ring. And there were times when he twisted Danno's foot in the absent-minded manner of trainman spinning a handbrake.

Dan Makes Jim Suffer

THE BOYS WERE SCARCELY 15 minutes out when Danno twined his legs around Jimmy's noggin like a pecan between the forceps of a nut cracker.

For a spell Danno sat thumping the Greek's forehead against the beautiful white great, moist, gurgling roars welled up from Jimmy's fount of indignation, and he bellowed in a way to frighten a sea-cow.

But Danno finally yanked his neck loose from the vise with a liquid, snorting sound and fetched Danno a forearm lick that made him reach hastily to count his molars.

Satisfied that his dental ivory was still anchored, Danno snatched Jimmy by the slack of his skin and did a neat housemaid's job of dusting the ring furniture until it was Jimmy's turn again and he squeezed Danno until his blue eyes bulged out like grapes.

It was an educational evening, mercifully devoid of any skull skating through the ropes and onto the ringside patrons.

And though the customers have been brought up on head

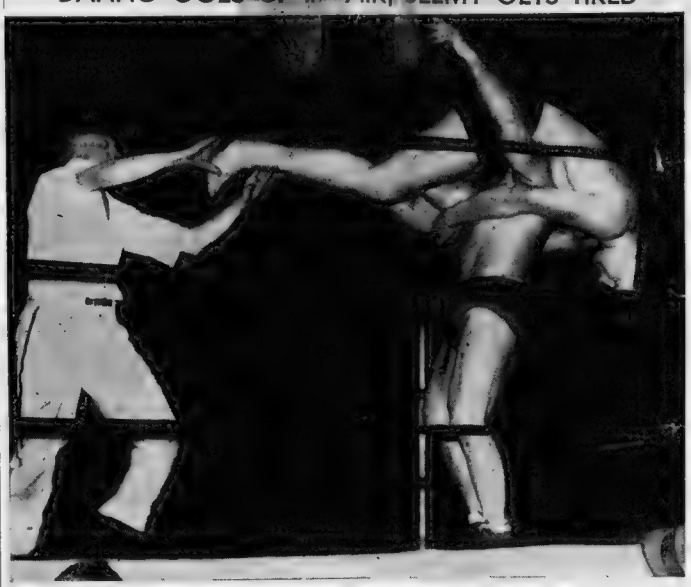
DANNO GOES UP IN AIR, JEEMY GETS TIRED



Jim Londos gives Dan O'Mahoney an airplane whirl ride. It was a joy ride for Danno, winner of the match, but only helped tire out Londos. The latter lost his heavy mat title to Danno, who today challenged the other heavyweight king, Ed Don George, to a finish match. The pair may meet this summer.

Irish Mat King Pins Londos

By Jack Conway

Danno O'Mahoney today demanded a title bout with Ed Don George as a result of his sensational victory over Jim Londos in 1h., 16m., 50s., before 28,000 persons at a Crosscup-Pishon Post show at Fenway Park.

"I am sure I can beat George as decisively as I did Londos," declared the 22-year-old Celt. "I am willing to sign for the George bout as soon as a promoter can get George's signature to a contract."

O'Mahoney, as a result of his victory over Londos, is today recognized as world's champion in New York, Pennsylvania, California, Illinois and 24 other states.

The Irish champion conquered Londos in one of the most thrilling mat contests ever witnessed in New England. There wasn't a dull moment in the bout.

SECOND JOHN L.

When Referee Ted Tonneman proclaimed Danno the winner, the latter received one of the greatest ovations ever accorded an athlete in Boston.

The youthful O'Mahoney is as popular with the public as the immortal John L. Sullivan was when the latter was heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

Londos and O'Mahoney started wrestling at an exceptionally fast pace. Danno wasn't the least bit awed by the Greek heavyweight's reputation. He forced his way to close quarters and roughed up his opponent.

Danno scored with a headlock and tried to drop Londos to the canvas. Jim called upon his great strength and was able to keep on his feet and finally break the hold.

At the 15-minute mark Londos scored with a head scissors. He dropped Danno to the canvas and punished him severely. O'Mahoney turned from side to side, and after four minutes kicked himself out of the hold.

Londos immediately pounced on O'Mahoney, but the latter got clear of his rival without much difficulty.

Londos dropped O'Mahoney with an arm lock and drew the boos of the crowd when he punched Danno in the face.

Referee Ted Tonneman warned Londos against the use of the strangle hold. He forced Jim to give up his hold. Both men got on their feet and then resumed warfare.

Danno Fast

Just before the 25-minute mark Danno stepped in swiftly scored with an arm lock and dropped Londos to the canvas. Jim wiggled and twisted and came out of the hold to get an arm lock on O'Mahoney.

Londos applied tremendous pressure. He had Danno in distress, but the latter's great strength enabled him to kick his way out of the hold. In a mixup along the ropes, Danno sent a right hand drive to Londos' face and the latter gave ground.

Londos applied a headlock. He tried to toss O'Mahoney over his shoulder, but was unable to do so. Jim then dropped to the canvas, pulling Danno with him. Danno soon broke the hold.

Both men applied arm locks. As they broke, Danno cut loose with a right hand swing that missed. He was warned by Referee Tonneman against punching.

Londos scored with a toe hold

WALLY BERGER A-1 SLUGGER

Shows Up Phils

By Joe Cashman

It takes a series like the current one between the Braves and Phillies to cast an accurate light on Wally Berger's slugging prowess.

In the Quakers' lineup are two young men named Dolph Camilli and Johnny Moore who have the reputation of being mighty home-run sluggers.

They can even point to records which tend to show they're in Berger's class. The Tribal thumper, with 15 circuit drives to his credit, is but one up on Camilli, and two ahead of Moore.

Put the trio in a spacious ball park like the Wigwam, however, and it takes an experienced eye only a few innings to note that the enemy sluggers are but amateurs compared to wallopin' Wally.

Take the Thursday twin bill, for example.

BAND BOX

Berger smashed out his 15th round-tripper to gain exclusive possession of second place in the National League derby. This blow came with the bases fully populated in the fifth frame of the first game.

Then in the nightcap, he smashed out two doubles, the latter of which landed against the left field barrier and missed by less than a yard of dropping over for another circuit drive.

The Phillies' pummeling pair, on the other hand, collected just two singles, both by Moore, in 17 tries. Camilli, who came here tied for second place in the race, went hitless in eight trips to the platter.

Moore, though, hit one round-tripper to right field which would have been a four-bagger in that ball park. Philadelphia pins were he plays. It makes a place and time to Camilli which Berger parked down might have a tale other that she'll in Sleepy Town.

If the Quaker pair had to play half their games in Alston Berger would be so far ahead of them every slugging department that couldn't be seen through the world's most powerful telescope.

And that goes for nearly every rival, who according to latest statistics is Wally's equal or superior as a power hitter.

With the possible exception of the shift-hitting "Ripper" Collins of the Cards, who alone among National Leaguers tops the Braves hefter in homers and runs batted in, and who can clear the fences of any park batting right or left handed, the blond Waiter is unquestionably the loop's leading slugger.

RUNS BATTED IN

There's not another right-handed batter in the league who has his half as many homers.

The only two left-handers on his heels outside of the pair from the Philly bandbox are Mel Ott and Joe Moore of the Giants, who have a 270-feet rightfield barrier to shoot at in the Polo Grounds.

And with all these advantages none of these is within hailing distance of the local hero in runs batted in.

Wally has hit ten of his home runs during the home stay at the Wigwam, where the shortest round-tripper must travel over 360 feet.

His other blow, except one at the Polo Grounds, must have gone at least that far from the other alien leftfields are as deep.

The Braves may be at the bottom but their centerfielder is the "top."

For a long time during the Thursday twin-bill it looked as if the rest of the Warriors were going to take a page out of Wally's book and make a determined bid to climb out of the basement.

5 GAMES BACK

But when the smoke of battle had cleared away, honors were even, and the Tribesmen, were still five games back of the seventh-place visitors.

Ed Brandt had a breeze turning back the Quakers, 11-1, in the opener.

Jim Niven of the opposition had the same kind of a breeze for five innings of the nightcap, sporting a 7 to 0 lead. Then the natives woke up and by putting over three runs in the sixth and four in the seventh tied the score.

It proved wasted effort, though, when Johnny Vergez hit a Bobby Smith pitch out of the lot in the ninth and Cy Perkins couldn't scoop when they had the tying run on third and winning marker on first with only one gone in the last half.

DANNO Defeats LONDOS

and subjected Danno to considerable punishment. O'Mahoney wigwagged across the ring and got under the ropes. Referee Tennyson compelled Londos to give up his hold.

Double Toe Hold

When Londos tried to rough things with the Irishman, the latter breezed a right hand sock to the jaw. This action brought a cheer from the crowd.

Londos used a stepover arm bar with good effect. It took Danno three minutes to get clear of the hold.

When Londos got a bit rough, Danno answered him with a couple of stiff right hand punches to the jaw.

Londos crashed Danno to the canvas with two inside crotch holds and body slams. The milling got very rough, and Danno called upon a right to the jaw to send Londos crashing across the ring.

Danno almost pinned Londos with a full nelson at the 1h. 5m. mark. He turned the Greek heavyweight over and planted him on his shoulders. Jim kept wiggling from side to side and thus prevented a fall. He finally got clear

Use Fists

Londos used a spread eagle in an effort to pin the young Irishman.

O'Mahoney used a body scissors to wear Londos down. Londos struggled desperately to get clear of the hold, but Danno held him fast and continued to apply pressure. In close, the big fellows used short punches with good effect. Londos then pulled clear of the hold.

Then came the finish as described above.

O'Mahoney's win was a stunning blow to Jack Curley, New York promotor. Curley was in a ringside seat, and had expected to see Londos win. He has Londos signed to meet Chief Little Wolf at a Milk Fund show at the Yankee Stadium, New York, on July 4.

Paul Bowser told this writer he would confer with Ed Don George and try to get the latter to meet O'Mahoney in a title bout in this city.

George was introduced from the ring before the O'Mahoney-Londos bout, and saw Danno gain his victory.

The end of the Londos-O'Mahoney came after a flurry of furious wrestling. Danno had the better of the going for most of the bout, and Londos was beginning to show signs of weariness. O'Mahoney, on the other hand, was surprisingly fresh

The young Irishman has displayed an amazing improvement in his wrestling. He was Londos' equal at wrestling, and his superior in the matter of strength.

SAVOLDI WINS

"Jumping" Joe Savoldi won from Charley Strack in the semifinal in 18m. 45s. Strack was disqualified by Referee Al Morelli for kicking.

Gino Garibaldi and Scotty McDougal went 10m. to a draw.

Dick Daviscourt of California and Billy Bartush of Chicago went 10m. to a draw.

Karl Pojello of Chicago used a double arm lock and back fall to win from Red Ryan of Philadelphia, in 8m. 35s.

Henri Piers of Holland and John Maimberg of Worcester went 10m. to a draw.

John Spellman, former Brown star, and Danny Hunters of New York furnished a stirring tussle with the latter winning with a flying tackle in 7m. 46s.

George McLeod of California and Len MacAlister, former Colgate star, went 10m. to a lively draw.

Chief Little Moose ran a bit wild after his go with Leo Numa was declared a draw at the end of 10m. He jammed up with Numa and Referee Charley Donnell and got the worst of it all around.

SWASHBUCKLER RULES

SOME DOGS HAVE ALL THE LUCK

What hound couldn't go out and win with Louise Lane giving them a loving sendoff? Certainly not these Dighton champions Cloudy Dawn and Glanmire. One champion always respects another. This trio looks like a sure fire winning combination. Our bet goes on Louise.

4 TWI Games for TONIGHT

Fresh from their victory over the Casey Club at Neponset last night, George Walker's Roslindale Club will entertain the Casey Club at Fallon Field. Trailing the Jordan-Marsh team by a half a game and leading the Casey Club by the same margin, the Roslindale outfit hope to gain a tie for leading honors.

At Dorchester Town Field Jordans will be at home to Barney McDermott's Hennigan Club.

The Madden-Wolfe game at Marcella should be interesting as the Wolf combination took a 4-3 game last night at Brighton after trailing the Roxbury club, 3-0.

In the final contest of the evening the St. Lazarus nine of Orient Heights will meet the St. Augustines at East Boston.

DAILY DOUBLE At Taunton

Taunton, June 28—The "Daily Double" will be inaugurated tonight at the Taunton Dog Track, permission having been granted by the Racing Commission. The "double" will be on the second and fourth races.

The verdict of Judge James Donnelley of the Superior Court which allows racing to continue at the track at least until the advance of the present meeting was received with great joy by track officials yesterday. The meet will run until August 10.

BOXING Boom SEEN

AMATEURS ON PARADE

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

New York, June 28—Joe Louis is a former golden glover, and the fame and fortune that has suddenly come to the brown youth from Detroit is an inspiration to all the golden glovers of the moment.

There is always a crop of golden glovers on tap. They come and go. A golden glover is an amateur boxer who puts up his dukes in the golden glove tournament, the greatest of the amateur boxing shows in the Big Town.

A golden glove winner wins a sure enough golden glove as an ornament to his person, and it is the most highly prized trophy of prowess in all the world of amateur sport.

The Golden Glove Tournament, bringing together the star boxers of every section of New York City, invariably sells out Madison Square Garden every year.

We were talking to Paul Gallico, Golden Glove founder, at the Louis-Carnera massacre the other evening and learned that the trials and tribulations of a promotor of amateur events make him a brother all over his akin to the pro entrepreneur.

It is a case of aspirin on both sides.

NEXT WEEK

The sad part of it is, the amateur promotor collects none of those potatoes that sometimes soothe the mental and physical pain of the pro.

With the amateur it is a labor of love. It must be love, considering the amount of labor attached to the promotion business.

The amateur promoter glories in the production of a great young boxer; then, as soon as the boxer becomes a joy to the promoter's heart, he flutters off to join up with the pro promoter.

The Golden Glove tournaments are constantly feeding the professional mills. Louis is but one of a score of promising young pros of today who came out of the Golden Gloves, though of course his is the most conspicuous.

You would think that after Mr. Gallico had weathered one Golden Glove tournament per year in New York city he would get out the old carpet slippers and take it easy awhile, but no.

He immediately starts in getting his local Golden Glove champions ready for an intercity tournament with Chicago, where the Golden Gloves are just as popular as in New York.

Life to Mr. Gallico is just one Golden Glove after another.

This year he has definitely added to his troubles by inventing an International Golden Gloves tournament that will bring together the best amateurs in New York and a team from Great Britain.

It is the biggest amateur presentation ever attempted in this city and promises to draw a crowd that will rival the gathering at the Yankee Stadium last Tuesday night.

The Stadium is where the tournament is to take place, and the time is the night of July 2.

BUDGE Eliminates BOUSSUS

London, June 28 (AP)—Donald Budge, youthful newcomer from Oakland, Cal., won the first set of his match with Christina Boussus of France, eighth seeded player, in the fourth round of the all-England tennis championships at Wimbledon today, 6—3.

The red-headed American's aggressive play swept Boussus right off the court in the first set, although Budge was wild and erratic in spots.

Budge took the first three games in succession and then lost at 4-2. Budge lost his own service in the seventh game by over-driving, but broke Boussus' service in the next game and then ran out the set.

Attacking the Frenchman's backhand in the second set, Budge ran through the first four games in summary fashion and won the set 6—2.

Selections Made for Fast

BEST BET—SWASHBUC

Narragansett Park, June 28—Howard Stable's grand handicap star, in my opinion is the all hears to beat for the $5000 added prize in the Handicap, one mile and a furlong feature of a sparkling races here tomorrow afternoon.

Swashbuckler, a best bet that placed opening day, is again accorded similar preference in the five-and-a-half furlongs of the second number. The rapid striding son of Omaha will be meeting nothing quite so formidable as Bright Idea, who drubbed him last time, and he apparently needs only a fighting ride in order to grace the winner's circle.

FIRST—WITAN, WEE TUNE, GREAT LOVER.

Witan is dropping down from $2500 top to a $1500 company. The Wise Counsellor gelding needs only to put forth a fraction of his effort in order to cop major honors. Wee Tune, weakly supported, displayed high speed in placing to Chewawa last time out. She steps up as strictly the one to fear. Great Lover drubbed cheaper opposition last time out and merits serious consideration off that effort.

SECOND—SWASHBUCKLER, TEN AFTER, SAY

SWASHBUCKLER'S recent second to Bright Idea should not be taken too seriously. Contention, if any, was furnished by NED REIGH. The latter turned in a fine performance in placing to Seabiscuit last time. HAROLDS WAY, stepping up a few pegs in class, but must be accorded better than even chance on recent form.

THIRD—BROWN JACK, HUG AGAIN, CHARACTER

Shooting for a price here and expect to get same. BROWN JACK runs back to his recent New York form. HUG AGAIN, the probable favorite and main danger, flashed good form in defeat by Happy Knot last time. CHARACTER is coming up a notch and may take it all.

FOURTH—FRISKY MATRON, CANDY MAID, HAPPY KNOT

FRISKY MATRON, a clever cost performer, strikes me as the class here. CANDY MAID, fast and consistent, showed good form in drubbing a cheaper field last trip. HAPPY KNOT, rates good figures on the strength of her winning performance Wednesday.

FIFTH—HOWARD, AGAIN, VICTORY

HOWARD comes up to this test fit as a fiddle and could make him. The Rolled Stocking colt whirled a winning four furlongs, AGRARIAN, third to Cavalcade and Discovery in last Kentucky Derby, is coming up a dead fit horse if workouts are any criterion.

SIXTH—ST. BYRNE, VANDERBIRT ENTRY, ALL FORLORN

Just have to go it BOY BYRNE one more time. The stimulus colt had scant chance with the start in the Narragansett Handicap and that effort may be tossed into discard. DREELAND BACHELOR DINNER, which will run coupled as the VANDERBILT ENTRY, has been treated royally by the handicapper and they will be up as "fred hot" favorites. ALL FORLORN figures next best.

SEVENTH—CUTIE FACE, TERALICE, EASIEST WAY

Have a hunch that CUTIE FACE will spring the highly-fancied TERALICE here. The Chilhowee mare is handicapped under a feather of 103 pounds. TERALICE is endowed with class. Figures close up despite a burden of 115 pounds. EASIEST WAY showed up well for the remainder.

EIGHTH—MANTADOS, ANNARITA, DARKLING

MANTADOS second to Top High, needs only a duplicate performance in order to lead the indifferent lot. ANNARITA's recent form may be tossed into the ashcan. DARKLING will be all dangerous if up to a race.

SUBSTITUTE RACE—WEE WINK, HONEY SWEET, PRIMUTE

The race is to be used only in case some other event is declared off. I'm calling the finish WEE WINK, HONEY SWEET and PRIMUTE and letting it go at that.

BRAVES RETURN TO VETERAN INFIELD LINEUP

MALLON, Urbanski, WHITNEY

HASLIN LOOKS LIKE STAR

By Joe Cashman

For better or worse, the Braves have returned to their veteran lineup with with Billy Urbanski at short, "Pinkey" Whitney at third and Les Mallon at second.

Whitney, performing for the first time in ten days, was in both Thursday tilts, while Urbanski, who had been out two weeks, replaced Joe Cosecrant in the nightcap.

Al Spohrer also made his first appearance back of the plate since being beaned with a bat during the series with the Cardinals when he caught seven innings of the nightcap.

He was forced to retire with a sore hand after being winged by a wild pitch of Joe Bowman's.

Bobby Brown, starting on the hill in the second game, wasn't so hot. He had little of the stuff and control he showed against the Pirates at Fort and last Monday.

At that, the Phils were enlisted to only two of the six runs they found the Hull boy for in four frames.

Mickey Haslin, who looks plenty sweet both at bat and around second base, robbed Ed Brandt of a shutout in the opener when he pasted a home run into the left field stands.

The same young man also collected a double off "Lefty" Ed, who gave but five hits in all, and came through with a double and single in the nightcap.

The single past short by Jim Riven, Philly hurler, in the fourth frame of the second game, was his first major league safety. He doffed his cap to his mates as he ran to first.

Coach Duffy Lewis has joined the Braves hospital list with a foot injury. He's walking around with a cane.

Hal Lee made four hits, including a double, in as many times up in the opener.

butts, where the athletes sink themselves into each other's most middles up to the ears, or swan dive into the press rows or kick each other in the abdomen, the action was confined to the ring with a minimum of mischief.

A Long Jump in Less Than Year

IT CAN BE GRANTED NOW that young Danno has come a long way from the January night when he made his first schoolboy fumblings at Ernie Dusek and scarcely knew what to do with the armfuls of legs and arms he gathered.

He has not yet mastered the agony grimaces of rubber faced people. And his chest tones are not nearly so noisy as those which some of the second rate Europeans emit.

But his ring technique, under the tutelage of Professor Freddy Moran, has become scholarly, and he has a lot of raw strength.

In the short six months since Jack McGrath unshipped him on the dock and led him into Paul Bowser's office as a shiny, unmarked specimen of better-grade manhood, he has earned himself a fungus ear, a bank account and an equal share in the world's title.

And now all roads lead to the extra, ultra, stupendous world's championship between Danno and Ed George sometime in late July, in which, if the little gods are kind, Danno will fit the two fragments together and make them one.

Youth Takes a Bow

I AM STILL A LITTLE woozy about all this, having suspected Londos as the winner for reason of his commercial appeal outside New England and his ability to draw in payloads of customers. My simple, mortal mand is no match for the infinite wisdom of the wrestling powers. I dip my knee to their all-seeing intelligence and scram away to vacation in northern New York state.

I am pleased that Danno, by courtesy of the copyright owners, has found his rainbow gold. And I trust that before he is pocked, pitted, and scarred too much by the ruin of his profession that he will parade his person to his native villagers on the green inclines of Dreenlomana.

His is an amazing fantasy and he joins the athletic legends which have taken place within the week, when a Detroit Negro battered down an Italian from the back slopes of the Alps for the unofficial prize ring title and a native of Cork flattened an unnaturalized Greek for 50 per cent of the wrestling realm.

Youth rides the skies in boxing and wrestling. Louis, 21, and O'Mahoney, 22, both nurslings when the men they defeated were in the prime of physical life.

They will travel the high road for a long time to come. But somewhere there is already the patter of infant feet where some toddling youngster is rising to strip them of their hard-won laurels. Up the Youth!

Joe Louis Copied Gans' Ring Style

This is the third of a series of articles by Jack Conway telling of the spectacular ring career of Bomber Joe Louis.

By JACK CONWAY

Joe Louis wasn't in that class of amateur boxers who lived in luxury as a result of their ring efforts.

Perhaps the amateur promoters didn't think Joe was going any place in particular as they only allowed him a small sum for expenses.

It was necessary for the Bomber to work at the Ford plant at River Rouge to get money to help out at home and to purchase for himself the bare necessities of life.

Home conditions were better than they had been in the Alabama cabin where the Bomber was born, but his life was not one of luxury.

Louis climaxed his career as an amateur boxer by winning the national light heavyweight championship at St. Louis in April, 1934.

In all Joe's amateur record comprised 43 knockouts, seven six decisions by decisions and four defeats. This made 54 bouts.

Joe gave up his job at the Ford plant and announced he would become a professional boxer.

On July 4, 1934, less than a year ago, Louis engaged in his first professional bout in Chicago. Jack Kracken was his opponent.

In this bout he showed exceptional punching power and boxing class.

Perhaps the amateur promoters didn't think Joe was going any place in particular as they only allowed him a small sum for expenses.

Joe Louis wasn't in that class of amateur boxers who lived in luxury as a result of their ring efforts.

It was necessary for the Bomber to work at the Ford plant at River Rouge to get money to help out at home and to purchase for himself the bare necessities of life.

Home conditions were better than they had been in the Alabama cabin where the Bomber was born, but his life was not one of luxury.

Louis climaxed his career as an amateur boxer by winning the national light heavyweight championship at St. Louis in April, 1934.

In all Joe's amateur record comprised 43 knockouts, seven six decisions by decisions and four defeats. This made 54 bouts.

Joe gave up his job at the Ford plant and announced he would become a professional boxer.

On July 4, 1934, less than a year ago, Louis engaged in his first professional bout in Chicago. Jack Kracken was his opponent.

In this bout he showed exceptional punching power and boxing class.

Joe Louis was Louis' ring idol. He had studied the career of this famous colored boxer. He copied Gans' boxing style, which was one of the most effective in the history of the ring.

Gans was an exceptionally good boxer, and Louis soon began to show ability along these lines.

Joe would shuffle in close quarters and move his head just enough to avoid a punch. When he got into position, he would strike his big punch for.

The fact Louis is a great boxer as well as a puncher is why he has been so successful.

He doesn't get hit often when he is able to break through his rival's defense and send his left hook or right hand punch crashing to the mark.

Willie Davies lasted only three rounds with Louis. Harry Udell was blasted out in two. Six other opponents were added to Louis' list of victims.

There was a demand that Louis meet a better grade of opposition. He was offered $1000 to clash with Stanley Poreda, and readily accepted the offer.

Poreda had once outpointed Primo Carnera and had a victory to his credit over the late Ernie Schaaf.

The Bomber knocked Poreda out in a round, and looked as if he was headed for the finic heights. He then knocked out the brawy hitting Charley Massera in three rounds.

Louis was signed to meet Lee Ramage in Chicago on December 14 1934. Ramage is a fast, clever boxer and a stiff puncher. It was felt he would give Louis a severe test.

The Bomber got inside of Ramage's defense and knocked him out in eight rounds. Joe got $2500 out of the Ramage bout.

The Bomber stepped into Detroit on January 5, 1935 and was paid $1250 for defeating Patsy Perroni in ten rounds. He had Perroni on the floor in the first round, but couldn't finish him.

Louis took his ring earnings and purchased a house for his mother.

Joe also made his mother his banker. What money he earned in the ring he turned over to his mother and she banked it for him.

Jack Conway will have another story on Joe Louis in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Your entry must reach the "Daily Double" Handicap Game Editor of the Boston American, P. O. Box 1946, or deliver to 8 Winthrop Square, Boston, not later than 1 P. M., Saturday, June 29.

Here are the Rules:

To play the "Daily Double" Game name the horses you think will win the first and third races at Narragansett. Then place the names of the horses you believe will run second and third in each of the two races.

20 pairs of tickets to the Narragansett Races will be given each day to winners.

Winners will be picked under the following rules:

Entries that pick the "Daily Double" will be given first consideration. Should there be fewer "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, winners of the remaining tickets will be scored as follows: First counts 8 points, second counts 4 points, and third counts 2 points in each of the two races. The entries scoring the largest number of points will be declared the winners.

In the event there are more "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, the prizes will be given to the "Daily Double" winners who score the largest number of points in selecting the horses that run second and third in the first and third races. In scoring these winners the following rules will be observed: Place counts 4 points and show 3 points for each race. Tied contestants will each receive a ticket.

In the event any of the horses you pick are scratched, the next horse will be automatically moved up one space on your list. For example, should your first choice fail to start, the second horse named becomes your first choice and the third horse your second choice.

Except where horses are scratched, your selections must run in the order in which you list them on your entry blank in order to be counted. ONLY THE NAME OF ONE HORSE MAY BE SELECTED WHERE THE HORSES ARE COUPLED IN BETTING, AS IN ENTRIES AND FIELDS. The decision of the judges will be final and no entries returned.

A coupon for Monday's "Daily Double" selections will be printed Saturday.

Each day's winners will be printed in all editions of the Boston Evening American the day after the races are run (Saturday's winners in Monday's editions).

Students In Outboard Regatta

By E. B. SCHRIFTGIESSER

With a roar of high-powered motors, outboard motor boat drivers from all over the east were converging on Worcester today for the school and college championships.

Starting early tomorrow afternoon and continuing through Sunday the best amateur speedsters of the country will churn the waters of Lake Quinsigamond into spray.

Dartmouth, Yale and Rutgers are considered the leading contenders in the college ranks for the title which Rutgers has held for the past two years.

WOOD ENTERED

Among the schoolboy drivers the champion Bob Wood, wide open Clint Ferguson, Wuhan record breaker, Jr. Peterson of Tabor Academy this year and probably will furnish the most competition to the young star Wood, Jr. of Agawam, Michigan high school.

Leading college point scorers will be found among ace veteran outboard pilots as Sammy Crooks of Rutgers, Bob Crawford of Dartmouth, or Roger Firestone of Princeton.

The races will be held over a specially surveyed course on Lake Quinsigamond, with the shores of the pond forming a natural grandstand for thousands.

The course has been improved this year to eliminate several curves and with good water conditions new records are certain.

BASIN REGATTA

Rowing will be for class A, B, C and F in the amateur division only. Prizes are to be awarded Sunday night at a banquet at the Bancroft Hotel in Worcester.

The Eastern Intercollegiate Outboard Association has sanctioned the races, which will be held under the auspices of the Central New England Regatta Association.

The latter organization, of which Stanley A. Ferguson is commodore, is also to run the big open Boston regatta on the Charles River basin under the auspices of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Many of the leading contenders in tomorrow's regatta are expected also to enter Boston's all-star races August 10 and 11.

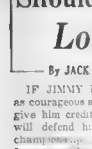
Mr. Boston Braddock Should Meet Louis

By JACK CONWAY

IF JIMMY BRADDOCK is as courageous and as wise as I give him credit for being, he will defend his heavyweight championship against Joe Louis next June for the New York Garden.

June, July, Garden matches, Braddock says, will not receive a title bout because he refused to meet Braddock last April.

"Your answer last April was 'No' as far as Braddock was concerned," Johnston has told the Detroit Bomber. "And as far as I am concerned it is still 'No.'"



Mr. Boston

This statement was probably prompted by the fact Louis is under contract to box for the Twentieth Century Club this year. It may be a different story in 1936.

If Louis lines up with the Garden and still is interested, I am to do so if he puts a crack on the champion's jaw and if the promoters can get a better split than 27½ per cent. Joe Jacobs, Louis' manager, wants a guarantee of $100,000 and 45 per cent of the receipts. Mike Jacobs, who will promote the Louis-Braddock match if the champion and challenger can't agree between themselves, is willing to guarantee Louis $100,000 and 40 per cent of the receipts.

So don't take the present Garden ban on Louis too seriously.

$500,000 GATE

LOUIS is the hottest card in boxing. If he can knock out either Max Baer or Max Schmeling in September, he would draw a gate of $500,000 against Braddock.

The latter, as champion, could demand at least 40 per cent of the receipts. He might even demand 45 per cent.

Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey each received 42½ per cent for their defenses of the heavyweight title in New York.

Louis is a confident he can win the championship that he would gladly accept the small end of the purse.

Braddock would receive upwards of $200,000 out of a Louis bout. After his managers received their share, and taxes and training expenses were paid, he would be left with close to $100,000. This would secure his financial future, in long a draw.

On form, Louis looks like a sure thing to lick Braddock, but yet the racial angle of both might hold another surprise. Braddock was the short end of 8 to 1 betting the Baer bout, and would be on a short end of 10 to 3 betting if Louis can face Louis.

The records say Louis would knock Braddock out. If he didn't, if Jimmy won, the sports writers would have another swell story.

Does he suppose Braddock is afraid of Schmeling? Ho.

Jimmy reveals his future plans in an exclusive interview with Ann Marsters in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. You will find Miss Marsters' article well considered fare.

PRIMO'S FUTURE

I FEEL a bit sorry for Primo Carnera. When he picked himself up off the canvas and took the count in his bout with Louis it was the end of the big money as far as the Italian giant is concerned. Carnera has earned more than 50,000 boxing, and he has little to show for his ring efforts. If he has $75,000 he has a great deal of money. I question whether he has that much. His fortune is probably under $60,000.

Poor investments cost Carnera's ring earnings. He has the mentality of a boy of 15, according to Dr. William Alker of the New York Athletic Commission.

Primo has been gullible and one of his supposed friends have enriched themselves at his expense. Carnera will continue boxing as he does not know of any other way to make a living. He will probably end his athletic career as a side show freak, meeting all comers in boxing or wrestling.

Primo was a manufactured boxer. He never had any real interest for the game, and became a world champion because of his tremendous strength and huge size rather than as a result of any real boxing ability.

PERRY WINS BRITISH OPEN

Equals All-Time Record for Play

By F. A. Wray
International News Service Sports Writer

Muirfield, Scotland, June 28 (INS)—Alf Perry, hitherto an obscure English professional, today won the British Open golf championship with a 72-hole total of 283, equalling the all-time record for championship play on both sides of the water.

Perry played two great rounds today to take the spotlight away from his field, shooting a marvelous 67 in the third round this morning and coming back with a par 72 this afternoon in the final round. This gave him 139 strokes for the final day of competition while everybody else, including the American contenders, wallowed all over the course, losing stroke after stroke to par in the high, boisterous winds.

Alf Padgham made it an all-England event by coming home late in the day with a sub par 71 to finish in second place at 287, while Lawson Little gave the American contingent some consolation with a great 35—34—69, low score for the final round, to finish in a tie with Bert Gadd for fourth place at 289.

Joe Ezar, colorful character from Waco, Tex., then finished the full American contingent with a total of 311, far down the list. He had a 40—40—80 in the final round.

Ball Cards 301

Frank Ball, another American, had a 77 for 303 and Joe Ezar, the Texan, an 80 for 311.

Few men in history have won the championship as many as did this much under-publicized Englishman from Leatherhead.

Five strokes back of the leading Whitecombe at the start of the day, he prostrated competition with his 67 this morning and then shot it official by driving home the nails with his par 72 this afternoon, taking a subpar 35 on the final nine where the slightest slip might have meant disaster.

Perry, the quiet, self-effacing Briton never faltered for a moment although the gallery of 10,000, packed around Muirfield's fifth tee, triumph after many years of American victories, ran wild over the final holes, hemming him in at every stride.

Perry's card:

Out, 4 4 3 4 4 4 3 5 5—37
In, 3 4 5 3 4 4 4 4 4—35—72—283

The wildly excited gallery almost mobbed Perry as he came off the final green, it being conceded at this point that none among the lists starters had a real chance of overtaking him.

Henry Picard, the American who started the final round five strokes back, finally finished with a 302—75 for a total of 292, taking possession of third place.

So, Perry, the man who plays golf so coolly as to almost defy interest, was acclaimed the champion of his own tight little isle even before the round officially ended.

His countrymen were practically looking at him for the first time when this happened, and, even to those accustomed to the drab appearance of English pros, he presented a strange aspect for a hero.

He is a short, stoutish man of ruddy complexion who started playing golf at the age of six, became a professional at fourteen as an assistant to the immortal James Braid at Walton Heath and then went to Leatherhead as professional in 1929.

Hits Peak of Game

Nobody gave him a thought before the tournament, and, when he shot a 69 in the first round, there was a general lifting of eyebrows by those who fancied they knew form. Perry himself was no less surprised by the turn of events and, as he made his way to the dressing room afterwards, he frankly admitted it.

"I haven't played a decent round for two years," he told International News Service. "My game simply came back in the nick of time. In addition, all the breaks came my way today."

Perry hard-y started off impressively this afternoon, for he took a 6 on the par 4 first hole and everybody felt that the blowup had come. Instead, he reeled off the final 17 holes in two under 4's, coming through in the pinch as only a real champion can.

His 6 at the first was the result of being in the rough with his tee shot and after three-putting the green. He followed with birdies at the third and fifth, and after taking a 5 at the 10th, he came through with birdies at the 10th and 17th.

At the 10th, he hit a beautiful approach to within 5 feet of the flag and holed the put for a 3. A pulled second shot lost him a stroke to par at the 12th and he repeated the performance with his tee shot to take a 4 on the short 16th.

However, he got a birdie 4 at the 17th, where, with a following wind, he got home with two woods and down with his second put, a performance that just about closed the books.

Cotton, the dethroned champion, was the first to grasp Perry's hand as he came off the final green and later said to friends:

"Naturally, I'm disappointed by my showing, but that really doesn't matter, so long as the championship stays on this side of the water."

Four-Ball Play Opens At Belmont

By Bill Grimes

The Belmont Springs invitation one of the stellar four-ball tournaments of the season, started this morning with 8 combinations battling to remain in the first division of four until such a time as they have acquired a championship right power.

Although many strong teams are in action, Rod Brown Jr., and Guy Hayes, who defeated Eddie Coughlin, Trawle, and Fred Hale, Oakley, in the finals, did not return to defend their title.

After a careful study of the talent, the committee did a fine job distributing the strength of the field.

In the upper quarter of the draw, the Country Club of New Bedford is represented by Dave Whiteside and Dr. Joshua H. Weeks.

Whiteside and Weeks are one of the lower handicaped teams in the field but they have the ability to go through, as they have done, on more than one occasion during their home club's four-ball invitation.

In the same bracket with the Whaling City team are Jack McCarthy, of the entertaining club, and Large Jack Herbert, New Bedford; Judge Joseph W. Monahan, Sandy Burr, and Wallace Cooledge, Exeter.

Jesse P Guilford and George Denton, Woodland, are in the second quarter with Fred F. Hale and Ed Coughlin, the unsuccessful finalists last year, Clark Hodder and Barrett Davidson.

Below the line are such formidable combinations as Jimmy Gannon, the long hitting midget from Happy Valley, and J. T. Leonard, Salem; Frank Craven, Charles River, and Bill Kemble Brae Burn; Lew Grimball and R. M. Baker, Billy McPhail and C. Searles Reed, Bessy Hopkins and Jimmy Conroy, a former state junior champion.

The Belmont Springs field will play two rounds today. The vanquished combinations will form two other divisions.

Azucar Races Discovery

Detroit, June 28—Azucar, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap and Discovery, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's great thoroughbred, will run a match race here Saturday for a purse of $10,000.

The race will be a substitute for the $25,000 Detroit Handicap, called off earlier because of an injury to Head Play.

COLLEGE Title Crew RACES START

Long Beach, Cal., June 28 (AP)—Race enthusiasts trooped into Long Beach today as six husky crews lined up for the qualifying heats in the second annual intercollegiate championships.

Broad - shouldered, sun - tanned athletes from the universities of Wisconsin, Syracuse, Pennsylvania, California, Washington and California at Los Angeles were ready to take to the water late this afternoon to battle over the 2000-meter route at the Olympic Marine Stadium for the right to compete in the finals tomorrow.

Race experts favored California, Pennsylvania, Washington and Syracuse to place in the finals.

Between the mighty Bears of California, fresh from their triumph at the Poughkeepsie classic; the powerful Huskies of Washington, winners of the 1853 sprint championships, and Pennsylvania's Quakers lay the victory predictions of observers, although the veteran Jim Ten Eyck's light but determined Syracuse outfit was considered formidable.

California, Wisconsin and Syracuse will meet in the first heat, and Pennsylvania, Washington and U. C. L. A compete in the second heats.

The Bears have been more impressive in practice sessions, trawling the sprint distance in 6 minutes, 30 seconds—two seconds better than the course record set by the Olympic games crew of Italy in 1932.

BOB GROVE ON HURLING STAFF

By Associated Press

Chicago, June 28—After almost as many sleepless nights as he spent last fall worrying over his battle plans for the World Series, Manager Mickey Cochrane of Detroit today announced his American League lineup of 20 players for the third all-star game against the National forces at Cleveland July 8.

Every club in the circuit was represented in the lineup selected by Cochrane with the aid of seven other managers in the league, the New York Yankees and Detroit lending with four stars apiece.

Philadelphia and Boston each played three, Cleveland and Washington two each, and the St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox each one.

Five Pitchers

The lineup consists of five pitchers, two southpaws in Lefty Gomez of the Yanks and the veteran Bob Grove of the Red Sox; three catchers, six infielders and six center fielders.

The lineup, altered at the last minute because of the injury to Outfielder Earl Averill of Cleveland, batting star of last year's American League triumphs, follows:

Pitchers—Mel Harder, Cleveland; Robert Grove, Boston; Vernon Gomez, New York; Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges, Detroit.

Catchers—Cochrane, Detroit; Bill Dickey, New York, and Rick Ferrell, Boston.

Infielders—Lou Gehrig, New York; Charles Gehringer, Detroit; Joe Cronin, Boston; Buddy Myer, Washington; Jimmie Foxx, Philadelphia, and Oswald Bluege, Washington.

Outfielders—Bob Johnson, Philadelphia; Sam Simmons, Chicago; Joe Vosmik, Cleveland; Roger Cramer, Philadelphia; Ben Chapman, New York, and Sam West, St. Louis.

Batting practice battery—Dave Keller, Philadelphia, pitcher; Ralph Perkins, Detroit, catcher.

Trainer—Dennis Carroll, Detroit.

Coaches—Rogers Hornsby, St. Louis; Del Baker, Detroit

Many Veterans

Many of them saw action in last year's game—Gehringer, Harder, Chapman, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons, Cronin, Dickey, Gomez and West. Missing from that lineup were Charley Ruffing, Babe Ruth and Averill. Not an out and out rookie was included.

Although Cochrane said it was too early to figure up his starting lineup, the general opinion around American League headquarters was that Bridges probably would start on the mound for the junior circuit, with Harder ready to step in.

Dickey was regarded as almost a cinch starter at the catching position with Gehrig at first, Gehringer at second, Cronin at shortstop and Foxx on third.

The best guess on the starting outfield seemed to be Johnson, left; Manush, center, and Vosmik, right, with West replacing Johnson should the American League get a lead and require an air-tight defense.

"The loss of Averill at the last minute not only has been a blow to the game but to the American League All-Stars," said Cochrane.

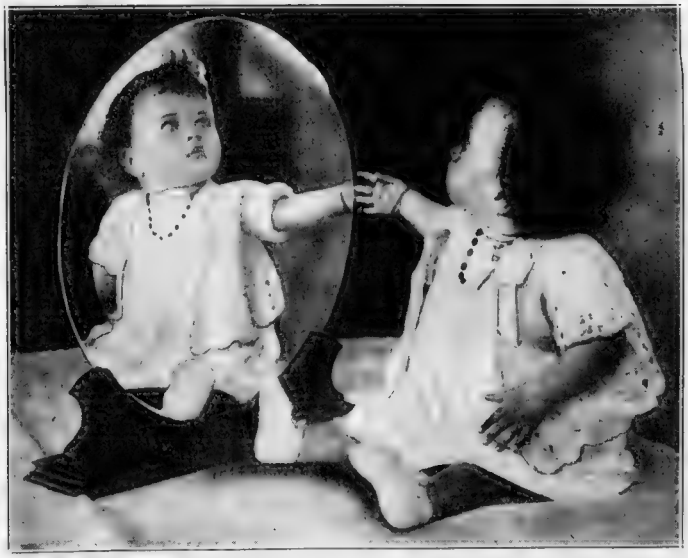
FAREWELL TO PEACE---'QUINS' ACQUIRE A MIRROR!



"WHO'S THAT?"—Cecile Dionne is wondering if this is a brand new "quin" sister she hasn't seen before. The mirror is a mystery to her, especially now that she discovers that she can't seem to touch that "other baby" when she reaches toward it with a chubby hand. Vanity is a weakness which hasn't yet entered into Cecile's scheme of things, nor has she thus far figured out that it is she, herself, whom she sees peering back at her so gravely from the glass.

PRETTY BABY—"Quin" Yvonne Dionne, all a-thrill at her discovery of the lure which a mirror holds for fair femininity, seems not displeased with the comeliness of her own reflection. Now that she and her sisters are getting so big that their peas-in-a-pod days are just ancient history, she's not going to get left in the imminent five-cornered race for "prettiest baby" honors. With her Sunday-best dress and her hand-knitted sweater, she's ready to make her bid as belle of the Dafoe hospital. If there's to be competition, she challenges, just bring it along.

"LET'S INVESTIGATE THIS"—"Quin" Annette Dionne's inquiring and alert little mind isn't going to be baffled long by the riddle of this looking glass. There's something funny about the reflected baby in the mirror—and Annette is bent on getting to the bottom of the mystery. She is trying now to find a way to reach through or behind the contraption confronting her. It can't be done in just this particular way, but Annette, the inquisitive and practical, is confident that perseverence will crown her efforts with success.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

Madman on Scaffold

A Rigger and His Drink-Crazed Partner Ninety Feet Above the Ground

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY—

Here comes another one of those height stories that just about scare the shirt off of me. You know, fellow adventurers, that height is my weak spot.

I get dizzy just thinking about high places. And when I get a yarn like this one from Marcus Moore of 30-68 37th street, Astoria, L. I., N. Y., I go through a pretty tough time while I'm reading it and trying to put it down on paper.

FLOYD GIBBONS

You know, it seems as if riggers and steeple-jacks and flagpole sitters and all those other guys who work in high places have sort of got my number and are sending in these yarns just to get my goat. But the worst of the whole dog-goned bunch is this bird, Mark Moore.

He doesn't think that teetering around in high places is enough of an experience to call adventure. No, he's got to get 90 feet above ground and then have a fight with a drunk.

It was in the winter of 1929, and Mark, who was working for a painting contractor, went out on a job redecorating the Pitkin Theater on Pitkin avenue, Brooklyn. He was working on a scaffold, 90 feet up in the air, spraying paint on the ceiling with a spraying machine operated by compressed air and fed with paint from a tank on the scaffold.

With him on the scaffold was a big, raw-boned agent whom Mark had worked with before, and with whom he'd never had the slightest bit of trouble.

It was a night job. They started after the last show, intending to work right on through so the theater could be ready for the 10 o'clock opening in the morning, and for the first part of the evening everything went along smoothly. Mark and the lad finished one part of the ceiling and then gave the signal to lower the scaffold and move it to another part of the big hall.

While the scaffold was down, Mark and his helper went out for refreshment. Mark went to a lunch wagon for a cup of coffee. He doesn't know just where his partner went, but the big fellow came back, his breath smelled of liquor, and he had a bottle on his hip.

Mark didn't pay much attention to that. It was a cold night, and what the big fellow did was his own business. But as the evening went on he got tighter and tighter. Finally he got to the point where he just sat down in a stupor on the scaffold, leaving all the work to Mark.

It was tough on Mark, handling that big spraying machine all by himself, but he tried it for a while. But all the time he was getting madder and madder, and when, finally, he saw the helper leaning back, taking another drink out of his bottle, he set down his machine, walked the length of the scaffold and snatched the bottle from his hand.

The big painter looked resentfully at him and reached his hand out to get the bottle back again, but Mark paid no attention to him and went back to his work. He thought the matter was settled, but he reckoned without the big fellow's determination. In another moment he felt the scaffold swaying.

The whole structure was moving violently, dangerously. He looked up and saw the helper, on his feet, teetering back and forth at the other end. Even as he looked, he saw the big fellow lower his head, double up his fists and come charging toward him. He was after that bottle.

Mark tried to retreat, found the paint tank blocking the way. He tried to climb the lumbering man by edging around to the other side, putting the tank between them.

The helper was almost on him now, swinging his big fists. As a last resort Mark turned the spraying machine and sent a blast of heavy paint full into the big fellow's face and eyes.

Choking, the big fellow pawed at his face. As the paint started to bite into his eyes, he gripped the hand-rail of the scaffold, howling at the top of his lungs, began to dance up and down.

By now, Mark was thoroughly frightened. He ran to the far end of the scaffold. There was only one way out, and he was going to take it. He swung over the side of the platform, wrapped his legs around the fall ropes that raised and lowered the scaffold, and started to lower himself to the ground.

It was 90 feet to the floor of the theater auditorium. About 30 feet down the pail of tank flashed past him. Then, to his horror, the tank was followed by the squirming, thrashing figure of his partner, the big fellow.

In his panic Mark doesn't remember the rest of his descent, but he must have slid the remaining 60 feet at breakneck speed, for the skin was all burned off his knees and the palms of his hands when he hit the floor.

The rest was a sort of nightmare. Dimly, Mark remembers police questioning him—taking away the bottle he had taken from the helper and which was still unbroken in his pocket. He remembers seeing them take the lad's body away on an ambulance—remembers thinking that was the last of him. But Mark was wrong there. The big fellow was a tough baby. He spent two months in the hospital, but he got out alive.

As far Mark, he didn't do any more work that night, but the next night he was back on the job with a sober partner.

Well, there are still a few of you steeple-jacks and flagpole sitters I haven't heard from. When are you birds going to send in your yarns? They get me down, but I can take it.

And just to show there are no hard feelings, I'll pay 10 bucks for every one that sends me into screaming convulsions. And don't forget, I'll be around again with another thriller.

Some of the boys and girls of the Floyd Gibbons' Adventurers' Club of the Boston American have criticised the photograph of Floyd that appears in the column. Several of them have written to express their opinion that the photo is one hundred per cent terrible.

At the same time, they point out that there are thousands of readers of Floyd's column who would prefer to express themselves artistically on ink sketching paper than with a pencil or pen and writing paper. In other words, their talents lean toward the drawn line, rather than the written word.

So if you happen to be so talented, see what you can do in sketching a pen and ink copy of Floyd's photo.

Mail it to the Floyd Gibbons' Adventurers' Club, unfolded, and we will have the art editor pass on it. If it is good, it will be published and the Boston American will be proud to publish the first artistic effort of some great artist or cartoonist.

It's as easy as just reaching for it—and a heck of a lot more fun. That's what hundreds of Boston American readers say of the $10 and $100 bills they have received from headline-hunter Floyd Gibbons for their TRUE adventure stories. Floyd says everybody has had at least one thrilling experience, and he wants to write up yours. Send him the facts, and win a pocketful of dough, like Mrs. Henry W. Gould of Worcester, who drew a $10 check and a $100 prize.

HOW TO WIN

And Membership In The Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club

It's all very simple. There are no rules, and everyone is eligible. Just write down the facts of your most thrilling adventure and mail it to Floyd Gibbons, care of the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Remember, the story must be TRUE. Don't worry about how well you can write. Floyd will take care of that. Floyd will pay $10 for every story printed and an extra prize of $100 for the best story of the month. Keep a copy of your story if you wish to have it, AS NO STORIES CAN BE RETURNED. Do not send valuable pictures or souvenirs of your adventure. Send the FACTS.

BOSTON BANK

Condemns NEW TAX Plans

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Confiscatory taxation and the redistribution of wealth that not only casts a cloud over our present situation but strikes at the very heart of our economic system.

That is the indictment made in the First National Bank of Boston New England letter of administration sponsored inheritance and gift tax proposals. Carried to its natural conclusion the letter sees such a tax system destroying wealth and distributing poverty. Further, and perhaps most important, is that it chills the spirit of private enterprise and stunts natural industrial growth as a result.

The bank letter points out that the worker to whom the sugary tax proposals are directed is the most seriously affected. Wealth that must be kept liquid for tax emergencies is not going about its natural business. It is not forcing industrial expansion, caring for repairs, fostering business and consequently unemployment increases and wages are reduced while all manner of enterprise stagnates. Particularly is this so of the heavy industries—lately promising to become more active—whose support is so badly needed at the present time to turn recovery into widespread prosperity.

State Street Notebook: The sharp increase in brokers' loans has some of the trading fraternity wondering. Perhaps, one or two think, the peculiar markets of late are typical of investment distribution . . . A more orderly, less hurried affair lacking the fireworks speculative markets have accustomed most of them to expect . . . A run up in here meeting stubborn resistance such as can only come from regular liquidation, will clinch their argument . . . In any event, all are looking toward 115 on the hourly release of the 30 industrial average with anxious eyes . . . If broken, they will lose faith in the market.

While rainy weather has retarded retail distribution somewhat, general conditions continue to show a slight improvement, according to the current review of Boston trade conditions by Dun & Bradstreet. Trade in woolen goods is active and higher prices prevail. Current sales of wool goods are slow, but men's wear manufacturers are well booked up. Cotton manufacturers have undertaken an extensive curtailment of output. Shoemakers are meeting a bit of resistance in their efforts to convince large buyers present prices are stable and increases are likely.

Shorts: May report of Eastern Massachusetts contains quite a dose of red ink . . . In fact just twice that of May, 1934 . . . For the five months to date a profit of $708 shows . . . Compared with $24,880 last year . . . Smaller railway operating income and larger railway operating expenses supply part of the answer . . . Higher taxes and a drop in other income the rest . . . On the good side is a reduction of interest in funded debt and a cut in rents . . . We remain of the opinion the bonds are worth the buying on recessions.

MARKET Menaced by ALIENS

1929 INCIDENT RECALLED

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser

(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service.

New York, June 28—The quiet gradual foreign acquisition of an increment stake in the shares of American corporations has interesting implications.

Such increasing alien ownership of big business in the United States is out of harmony with the growing interest in greater self containment for the United States.

It runs counter to the desire in some quarters to insulate the United States so far as possible from the sparks of foreign military and economic disturbances.

This observation is not made in any emotional, jingolistic spirit.

It merely constitutes a recognition that, so long as foreign holdings of American securities and bank balances are large, our internal equilibrium is subject to great disturbance whenever for non-American reasons foreign investors feel impelled to make a flight out of dollar securities or dollar balances.

The hazard can be better visualized when it is recalled that the immediate cause of the stock market panic in October, 1929, was the substantial British liquidation of American securities as a result of the collapse of the Hatry promotions in England.

British financial institutions were involved, and they sold their highly liquid American holdings in order to get cash to fortify their position.

The significant point is that the immediate reason for the British selling was not so much their diagnosis of the American economic prospects as their own internal need for liquidity as a result of the impairment resulting from the Hatry incident.

Americans are living in a fool's paradise if they think we have attained even a modicum of economic self containment, so long as the major price trend in our markets can be reversed by foreign selling for reasons unrelated to the American home economy.

Later, following the moratorium in 1931, in which we suspended important foreign payments to us, yet continued to meet our obligations to foreigners, put foreigners in a position to dominate the New York money market.

According to the last peek report to the President, foreign holdings of American securities, property and bank balances at the end of 1934 exceeded seven thousand, five hundred million dollars and reached a sum equal to three-quarters of the face value of the war debt.

Wholly apart from emotional considerations, it must be recognized that such a huge foreign stake in American property gives foreigners an instrument by which they can virtually inflate us or deflate us at will.

This is not said in any spirit of attacking the motives or ideals of foreign owners. It is pointed out in recognition of the simple fact that the foreigners can be counted on to act in accordance with their own interests rather than ours, whenever there may be a conflict of interests.

Moreover, any talk of national planning is misleading as long as these leaks take the control of our destiny partly out of American hands.

DIVIDEND Paid in Arrears

General Fireproofing Company declared a dividend in arrears of $1.75 on 7 per cent preferred, payable July 1 to stock of record June 26. Three months ago $1 was paid.

The company also extended to August 1 the plan offered shareholders to take 4 per cent notes payable up to June 30, 1942, in lieu of unpaid dividends of $17.25 a share.

Pure Oil Calls Notes

Pure Oil Company is calling for redemption on August 1 $12,500,000 5½ per cent notes, due August 1, 1937, at 100¾, and $500,000 additional of the same notes to take care of normal sinking fund requirements falling due August 1.

Cumulative Dividend

Pacific Service Company declared a dividend of 20 cents on the cumulative first preferred, payable August 1 to stock of record July 15. This is the first payment since May, 1932, and will leave arrearage of $3.70 a share.

STOCK MARKET

Prices HOLD Steady

New York, June 28—The stock market retained its steady to firm appearance during late trading today with a few leaders extending early advances to more than a point.

At the beginning of the final hour shares selling 1 to 2 points higher included Air Reduction, American Can, International Harvester, Westinghouse, Cerro De Pasco, National Distillers, Schenley and American Telephone. Major fractional advances were shown by Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas Union Pacific and New York Central. The late tone was steady to firm.

Demand for some of the silver mining group was attributed to rumors that the Treasury might again tilt the domestic rate for the metal.

Silver prices in London and Montreal, however, were lower and the import quotation at New York was unchanged.

Copper shares were not heavy, although leading manufacturers of brass and copper products announced reduced price schedules to conform with yesterday's offerings of the metal at 8 cents a pound, a cut of 1 cent from the old Blue Eagle level.

Followers of the utilities found nothing new to discourage their belief that the holding companies will not receive a congressional "death sentence."

A sharp decline in freight car loadings for the past week was not unexpected. The drop was principally in coal which had been moved heavily in the previous week on fears of labor difficulties.

Spotty Factors

Most market commentators were unable to draw any definite conclusions from the recent action of equities, although some pointed out that the absence of important liquidation, together with the dullness of the list, in the face of Washington uncertainties, indicated no reversal in the long-term upward trend.

The financial sector was not at all happy over predictions that Congress, with its wealth-tax program and other so-called administrative "must" measures to consider, will be in session all summer. At the same time hope was expressed that many bills will be materially softened before becoming laws.

Although the cloudiness of the legislative picture continued to confuse traders, hopes for steady improvement in business and industry were not diminished by the week-end reviews.

The passing of the second quarter, Dun & Bradstreet said, will bring few regrets, but evidence was found in the week's survey that the year's lows had been established in many trade dividends. Retail sales for the week, it was added, averaged 5 to 20 per cent ahead of the totals for the corresponding week of 1934.

"Eat Sensibly—Drink Welch's Grape Juice"

Says IRENE RICH

Lovely Lady of the Air and Screen

BEWARE OF CHEAP SUBSTITUTES

Get only genuine Welch's, the grape juice diet authorities prescribe. For the secret Welch Process retains the essential healthful properties of ripe Concord Grapes. Welch's is also the only grape juice that is Certified-Pure, Pasteurized; contains no adulterants, no synthetic flavors, no artificial coloring, no preservatives, no added water. Always full strength. Can be diluted with ¼ water and still be delicious. Hence Welch's goes farther too. So ask for it by name. And be sure to get what you ask for!

EDMUND LOWE IN RADIO ROLE TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

Another famous figure in the film fraternity finds that they want him to hold forth for folks who listen by the loudspeakers from coast to coast.

It's Edmund Lowe, the handsome and versatile leading man of so many memorable screen parts. His "Sez Me" to the "Sez You" of Victor McLaglen is easily recalled. He has the spotlight (WNAC) on the air tonight when Louella Parsons, popular photoplay editor for your favorite evening newspaper, introduces him this evening along there between 9 and 10 o'clock.

"N. F. T."

In company with Lowe, the well known personalities of Karen Morley and Una O'Connor also come to the "mike" to support the Lowe characterization. Excerpts from his latest picture "Thunder In The Night" will provide the dramatic situations for re-enactment. All of which is part of the regular weekly "Hollywood Hotel" presentation.

Last of the Friday night "Stoopnagle and Budd" half hour turns takes place this evening (WNAC) come 10:30, since the pair are making ready to join the Waring "Pennsylvanians" hour as of next Tuesday night.

LOCAL LATHER

Not too late to make mention and bestow a columnistic bouquet upon John (WBZ) McNamara, in connection with the masterful descriptive job he did during the special Tercentenary airing down Hingham way last Sunday afternoon. His voice and narration went out all across America by means of a nation-wide hookup . . . Leland Bickford, who wrote "News While It Is News" in book form, sprinkled the not very interesting effort with likewise not impressively constructed discredits for the press. Also some only to be expected but most wordy praise for the place where he works. Then he tops it off by using reproduced newspaper clippings for the attention compelling cover design.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW — NATIONAL DIRECTOR

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

The Sky Rockets Squadron No. 431, commanded by Sebastian Carco, of East Boston, with 132 points, is still leading in the second quarter race for the wing honor banner. The banner now hangs in Sebastian's home as this hard-working unit won it for the first time on April 1.

Plenty of the Junior Birdmen fighting spirit is still evident in the runners-up. Guido Novello's Three-star squadron, No. 342, of Somerville, has 121 points.

The Louise Wheeler's Sky Girls squadron, No. 197, of Belmont, who have earned the reputation of being the most active girls' squadron in New England wing are third, with a score of 102 points.

Marion Chase, 16, of 36 Wilson ave., Belmont, is the recently elected sergeant-at-arms of this group.

MARION CHASE

Lone Eagles squadron, No. 276, commander Louis Bruneau, 99 points; Frisco Fliers squadron, No. 147, commander Lena Santangello, 51 points; Leaping Lenas squadron, No. 599, commander John Jacobs, 43 points; Flying Spartons squadron, No. 566, of Chelsea, commander Ralph Seferian, 41 points.

July will inaugurate a new race for this blue satin banner, embroidered in gold and red, mounted on a brass rod and fringed in gold. Each quarter it is awarded to the squadron obtaining the most points by holding meetings, sending in reports, taking part in wing activities and model plane meets and visiting airports.

All squadrons in New England and all Canadian squadrons belonging to the Boston wing are eligible. For three months the winning squadron has the banner hanging in its own club quarters to spur it to new activities and new honors in the Junior Birdmen.

Radio Answers

Q—Is it true that Rudy Vallee has a sister in the radio field? Where does she broadcast and what else does she do?

May B., of Brighton.

A—Rudy's sister broadcasts as Kay Vallee and heads her own instrumental trio at WCSH in Portland, Maine. She is doing well and first started in 1925. In private life she is a housewife, married to Prosper Lenneville. Kay lives with her Dad and hubby in the Vallee big house in Westbrook.

Q—Does someone strike those chimes that are in between big network programs from New York and Chicago?

T. L. of Leominster.

A—No, they are now automatic. Only the NBC chain uses the musical chime, the CBS hookup does not.

Q—What became of the big ballyhoo and contest clatter about naming Max Baer's dog? They even emphasized it the night of the fight, but little is heard of it now. Is it still a contest?

Entry, of Brookline.

A—Frankly, the situation is still open, but with Max dropping his title to Braddock and the whole glamour diminishing so noticeably in connection with the Baer fellow, not much public response could be hoped for. As a result the idea has not been pushed, but no word is in hand that it is cancelled.

Q—Is the announcer John S. Young a Harvard or Yale man?

J. M. of Jamaica Plain.

A—Young is of Yale and St. Benedict's College, in Kansas.

Q—Where is the estate owned by Joe Cook, the comedian, located?

A—It is in Lake Hopatcong, N. J.

Q—Are the Mills Brothers on the air at present? What station?

A—No, the four lads are appearing in Europe now.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

FRIDAY, JUNE 28, 1935

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

Oath Allegiance Law

Provided With Teeth

SOME of its vanquished opponents are busy circulating the report that the teachers-professors oath bill was enacted into law without provision of any penalty for violation.

Of course, this is nothing more nor less than a subtle and insidious suggestion that the law CAN BE BROKEN WITH IMPUNITY.

And, of course, it is a glaring misconception, typical of the erroneous ideas advanced by the opposition during the long battle over the bill.

It is true that no fine or jail sentence or whipping post is provided in the new law for individuals and institutions that break it by teaching without having taken oath to the federal and state constitutions.

THE penalty is much more severe.

The penalty is the loss of public confidence and respect by all violators.

Violations will be a matter of state record.

This list will be small because the vast majority of teachers and professors in Massachusetts are good patriots who will hold it a privilege to take the oath.

It was NOT the idea of the proponents of this new law that anybody should be fined or jailed or whipped for fostering un-American ideas in American educational institutions.

The purpose was to EXPOSE the hidden sources of that disloyalty at the bar of public opinion.

This will be accomplished to the dismay of those who believe the penalty of public opinion is one that may be safely ignored.

"I. C. 342"

Found by Harvard

"I. C. 342."

Sounds like the name of one of Uncle Sam's submarines?

Well, it isn't.

"I. C. 342" is the name of another universe, discovery of which was announced this week by Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory.

The central nucleus of the distant universe—about a million light years from earth—was first noted more than forty years ago.

The discoverer was W. F. Denning, an English amateur.

It remained for Harvard star-finders to learn WHAT had been discovered.

Harvard's quest of the skies has one very practical result, not to mention others.

A discovery like this makes all the text books and reference works on astronomy obsolete.

New ones have to be printed.

That's where our old friends "Work and Wages" step in.

Make It a Safe Fourth

Then No One'll Be Sorry

The Fourth of July is close at hand.

Explosives will combine with auto hazards to menace the safety of both adults and children.

But in most cases, the parties injured may have their own carelessness to blame for it.

There will be danger lurking, too, in the waters—fresh and salt—for the reckless.

Now is a good time to resolve that you will try to make it a safe and sane Fourth.

For yourself and others.

And then KEEP the timely resolution!

We Know Our Merits

Vacation Land

New Englanders are firm in the belief that they have the best vacation land to be found anywhere.

The Social Register for the Summer of 1935, issued the other day, gives proof of this.

It shows that even those who have plenty of money to go elsewhere will pass the Summer in New England.

Choices are split between Cape Cod, the Berkshires, the North Shore and the various resorts in neighboring States.

But nearly ALL the vacation roads lead to points in New England.

That's the RIGHT sort of appreciation!

A Lot in 17 Words

Our Government

The spiritual kernel of American democracy was never better defined than by Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Chamber of Commerce of New York State, when he said:

"The Government is an agency of the people; the people are not the tools of the Government."

This is worth a ton of the glittering generalities and sentimental rigmarole that gush forth from the Socialistic jobholders in Washington, who would reduce the American people to the level of the inmates of Stalin's vast camps of forced labor.

More June Brides

No Fooling

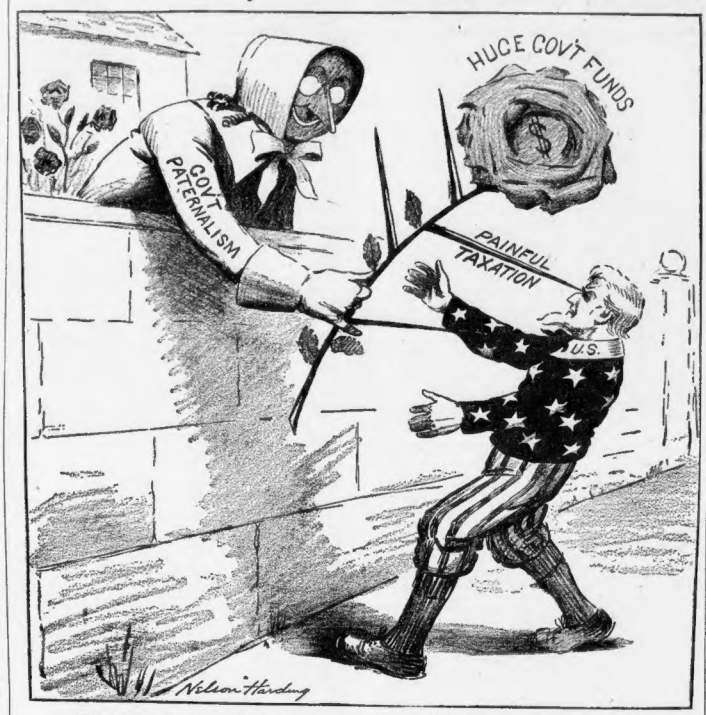
Boston prosperity note: A greater number of June brides this year than for some years past.

Statistics show that 113 more couples have filed marriage intentions this June than last.

And in these days, when depression has taught so many sound economics, there is no fooling the lovelorn that two may live as cheaply as one.

'Every Rose Has Its Thorn'

By Nelson Harding



The motherly soul hands a beautiful rose,
A freehanded gift, to the lad.
The flower's perfume overpowers his nose,
And yet he seems not to be glad.

The generous donor is smiling and bland,
The other's expression is wry.
For while in the act of extending his hand
The thorn hits him right in the eye.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, June 28—Thoughts while strolling: That depressing atmosphere of a restaurant slowly failing. Waiters standing around to watch your every mouthful. Alone in a wilderness of tables. Uncertain butter. Dubious eggs. Those dumb stories they pin on Sam Goldwyn—dumb like a fox!

O. O. McIntyre

Look alikes: Hoover and Humpty Dumpty. And London's C. B. Cochran is another reminder of Hobbe, the grocer, in Fauntleroy.

The Brevoort has the best sidewalk sipping trade. Gelet Burgess says: Criticizing a Frenchman is like trying to straighten out the kinks of a rope.

One word description of Marilyn Miller—twirly. Does anyone know Leon and Eddie's last names? The intelligentsia has about worn out whimsey. Add hiccup names: Garlock Fush. What's become of Floyd Dell? The doorman with the weeping eyes in front of that 57th street Russian cafe.

Wonder if Pearl, Frank and Gene Buck know each other? Hannah Dempsey always ambuscades one eye with a hat tilt. Those smart aleck with loose police dogs. The barber shop goes from salon to studio. William Powell walks exactly like Leo Dietrichstein. How Fannie Hurst can delsarte the English!

Hoity-toity biography: "Catherine." The human note:

"I think I'll use this razor blade just once more."

Tough to write "interested" quickly on the typewriter. The stage's thin lady—Helen Menken. Kennel note: My English bull puppy turns a precise front somersault, and is deathly afraid of locusts.

Henry Bell brings a surprising trick toy he picked up from a curb hawker along the avenue Matignon. A mechanical Lilliputian auto—7 frs.

Wound and placed on a table top it almost has one swooning as it teeters perilously on the edge. But it noses around, tries another edge like a cockroach at bay and never makes the fatal plunge.

Washington Square's widely ballyhooed sidewalk art exhibit has grossed $18,000 so far. Most al fresco displays run southward from the square down West Broadway.

All schools seem represented by the bereted, sandaled and smocked who sit hard by on camp chairs. Looking extremely self-conscious. But arty.

They were talking at the Coffee House Club of the depression—or the crisis as they now call it in England and on the continent—and a learned fellow in philosophy observed that the calamity was producing a specific disease of mendicancy among previously self-respecting citizens. He cited stages.

1. Grateful thanks for help.
2. Help taken for granted, no thanks.
3. No help resented.
4. Histrionic melancholy, sad poses, whines and affected pathos.
5. Actual lying about conditions.
6. Demands that have the tinge of threat.
7. Stealing. And at his conclusion, he said:

"None of us enduring these worst phases can probably say we would not succumb to the various graduations."

I notice chateaubriand is becoming increasingly conspicuous on the New York menu cartes. Many trips to Europe have not taught me exactly what it is. But one thing is almost certain: To order it will nine times out of ten bring a tender, juicy steak.

Theodor tells me that most out-of-towners, bewildered at the process of ordering, fall back on a planked steak and for dessert ask for a baked Alaska. Then there is the process of the finicky gourmet, such as Harry Lehr. He rarely ordered. He went where the maitre d'hotel was an expert and left everything to him.

And no one ever dined so well. Among America's most famous in the art of selecting an excellent dinner was the late Nicholas Longworth.

Don Herold tells of the woman bus passenger hurrying into a restaurant stop for a quick cup of coffee. It was too hot to handle. So an observing and gallant longhorn next to her shoved his cup over with:

"Take mine, ma'm. It's been saucered and blowed."

Doom of Ethiopia

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

It scarcely requires the seventh son of a seventh son to predict the doom of Ethiopia. Plain is the writing on the wall. It is peculiarly plain because it is the writing of Mussolini.

British Captain Eden commutes between London and Geneva, speaking those soft words which should turn away wrath.

From time to time, we read that Il Duce is not bent on absolute conquest of the only remaining state in all Africa, but merely desires special privileges for Italy.

Edwin C. Hill

The League of Nations, drowning in its beautiful palace by the lake, murmurs sweet sentiments of hope, but the fact looms, as colossal as the Colosseum, that Ethiopia's number is up.

SOLDIERS AT WORK

International political bookmakers would lay 10 to 1 that with the coming autumn, when military operations in mountainous, roadless Ethiopia become possible, Italian soldiers will be pouring into the empire of Haile Selassie.

And Italy's bombing planes will be thicker than the birds of the air over the Emperor's capital of Addis Ababa.

It would, indeed, be interesting to learn what odds Lloyds of London would give on the continuing independence of Ethiopia.

Mussolini has sent some 30,000 troops together with vast stores of munitions and other war supplies to Italian Somaliland. The expense already has been stupendous.

It would be too much to expect that Il Duce would refrain from collecting full return on an investment of such proportions. It will be deplorable, but it seems nevertheless inevitable.

FOLLOWS PRECEDENT

After all, whatever the morality of the case may be, Italy is merely following, although belatedly, in the footsteps of Great Britain, France, Belgium, Portugal and Germany.

Over a period of some 60 years these five nations, by military force, absorbed the territories of the native African peoples.

Germany lost her African colonies as a result of the World War, and her conquests passed mostly into the hands of the English.

Quite logically, indeed, Mussolini can counter all protests by stating the simple fact that he contemplates precisely the same territorial acquisitions as had already been consummated by other European powers.

Indeed, the Italian dictator can repeat the precise excesses that were made in the past by the other European conquerors of African territory.

He can maintain that in this day and age Ethiopia is a barbarous country, a nuisance to civilization. It is still living in the Middle Ages.

Politically it is as futile as was France before Louis XI or England before William the Conqueror.

Its nobles gorge on raw beef, incessantly war against each other, maintain the institution of slavery and countenance cheapness of life and the existence of cruelty.

There is truth in all this, although its advancement would be sheer hypocrisy.

The real truth is that Italy, deprived of valuable African colonies by the superior fatness of other great European powers, needs Ethiopia in her business.

Such small African territory as she has managed to wrangle in the past two or three decades is unattractive, arid, unprofitable.

A RICH LAND

With little hope of obtaining from either Great Britain or France any African territorial concessions, there remains for her need only the land of King Solomon's descendants.

Ethiopia is rich in minerals and agriculturally fertile. It would be possible for Italy to colonize her own nation very extensively in that land and thereby ease the ever-growing problem of an overcrowded homeland.

Resting Spell

By Edgar A. Guest

Books in the corner, an old arm chair,
The mother knitting, and all is well;
A bowl of apples to munch while there,
And the home is blessed with a resting spell.

Far away from the city's hum,
Done with gossip and hue and cry;
Done with dreading what is to come,
At home for an evening and glad am I!

No one to flatter and no one to fear
And nothing to offer to buy or sell.
Just mother and I and the children here
Safe and happy and all is well!

It may be that fortune and fame may hold
Truer delights, but I cannot tell;
But surely at times must the brave and bold
Hunger for home and a resting spell.

Nine Men

Stroke of Genius

[Following editorial is reprinted from the New York Times of June 17, 1935.]

IN Miss Grace Abbott's broadcast from the International Labor Office at Geneva on Saturday one detected many of the fine qualities which have marked her previous official work. She was speaking of the vote of the conference in favor of the forty-hour week.

She herself would have put the figure lower. She alluded to the decision to advocate fifteen years as the school-leaving age. Miss Abbott would have put that figure higher. So with the comparative failure to deal with the special question of unemployment for young persons.

She and some of the other delegates would have gone much further in all these and other lines than the majority was willing to advance.

Yet she referred to the difficulties and delays with patience, tolerance and hopefulness, remarking at the end that it was for the people to make the final determination, since by their votes Legislatures and Congress would be instructed to enact the desired laws.

AT one point, however, it seemed that Miss Abbott lost her customary poise and fairness. With a tinge of bitterness, she lamented the fact that the great work of social progress in the United States had been checked, if not put back for years, "By nine men."

Just that. Nothing more.

Not a word to explain that these nine men constituted the Supreme Court of the United States.

An uninstructed listener-in might have inferred that a casual group of nine men had, somehow, managed to prevent the will of the American people from taking effect.

The expression was unhappy, since it fell in with a current tendency to indulge in flings at the Supreme Court as if it were made up of members who were callous to all considerations of humanity, and who had usurped power to thwart the President.

IF we are asked to shudder at the power which nine men have over this country, what should we think of one man having all of it?

The nine, when they are unanimous, are more apt to be right than he. Especially is this the case when the high matters involved are those of law and constitutional rights and duties.

Sometimes are heard sneers at the men composing our highest judicial tribunal.

Upon what meat do they feed that they have become so great?

They are all mortal men, fallible like the rest of us.

Some of them started out in life as politicians long before they became judges.

WHY should they ask or expect 120 millions of people to bow to their decisions?

One reason is that they have taken an oath to support the Constitution, which declares that the judicial power of this Government "extends to all cases in law or equity arising under this Constitution."

Thus a most solemn responsibility is laid upon them.

WHATEVER their beginnings in public life, these nine men are called upon to stand apart and detached, so as to give their best powers of mind, along with their mature and conscientious convictions, to the work of declaring the law and interpreting the Constitution.

They do not attempt this offhand or out of their own heads. The Supreme Court is a continuous body. It has no limited term of office. Its members feel themselves at one with the great tradition which has been established through generations.

When the judges of the Supreme Court in their opinions say "we," they identify themselves with their eminent predecessors, with Marshall, with Chase, with White.

No man having entered into this long and glorious fellowship and undertaken these indispensable functions of a judge could for a moment allow his own antecedents or political preferences or personal prejudices to sway him when it comes to the task of uttering his deliberate judgment.

SCORNFUL jibes at such a tribunal as our Supreme Court reflect only upon those who make them. No other institution exactly like it exists anywhere else in the world.

By an unconscious stroke of genius the framers of the American Constitution assigned a role to the Supreme Court which it has glorified and strengthened.

Sneers at the nine men who sit on that Bench are only less obnoxious than they would be in the case of the one man, chosen by all the people, who sits in the White House.

Blind to History

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

Nearly all of the various proposals to "make over" the Constitution of the United States recently advanced in Congress seem to have the common purpose of giving supreme power to Congress.

Such proposals are contrary to the main objective of the Framers of the Constitution. What this objective was has many times been set forth.

Seldom, however, with greater clarity has it been defined than by the late Henry Adams, the American historian, who was the son of Charles Francis Adams and the grandson of John Quincy Adams.

In one of his essays on American history and government, Mr. Adams says:

"The men who made the Constitution intended to make by its means an issue with antiquity. And they had a clear conception of the issue itself, and of their own purposes in raising it.

"The great object of terror and suspicion to the people of the thirteen provinces was power; not merely power in the hands of a President or Prince, of one assembly or of several, of many citizens or few, but power in the abstract, wherever it existed and under whatever name.

"Supreme, irresistible authority must exist somewhere in every government was the European belief, and England solved her problem by a representative assembly to be used according to the best judgment of the nation.

"America, on the other hand, asserted that the principle was not true; that no such supreme power need exist in any government; that in the American government none such should be allowed to exist, because absolute power in any form was inconsistent with freedom and that the new government should start from the idea that only the liberty depended upon denying uncontrolled authority to the political system in its parts or in its whole.

"Everyone knows with what logic this theory was worked out in the mechanism of the new republic. Not only were rights reserved to the people never to be parted with, but rights of great extent were reserved to the States as a sacred deposit to be jealously guarded.

"Even in the central government the great depositaries of power were made independent of each other, checks on each other; assumption of authority, separately responsible to the people, that each might be a protection and not a danger to the public liberties."

When, therefore, those Representatives in Congress organize a sapping expedition to undermine the Government, the Constitution and give the Congress the supreme power, they are not making an issue with antiquity.

They are embracing antiquity and preferring the European to the American system of government established by the Constitution.

Legion Thanks American

From: The American Legion, Department of Massachusetts.
June 26, 1935.

Editor, Boston American,

Dear Sir:

THE Executive approval given today to the Teacher's Oath Bill marks the fulfillment of the mandate of our Brockton convention.

In the course of the progress of this legislation there are many to whom the American Legion is indebted for their adherence to patriotic ideals.

The opponents of this legislation had, by their insidious propaganda, created unwarranted fears on the part of our loyal public school teachers, and the columns of the Boston American, as well as its editorial comment, contributed immeasurably to the dissemination of accurate information and the resultant enlightenment on the part of the public at large as to the real merits of this bill.

The American Legion is deeply grateful to the patriotic press, in which category the Boston American so eminently qualifies.

Yours very truly,

JEREMIAH J. TWOMEY,
Department Commander.
HAROLD P. REDDEN
Department Adjutant.
